Conditions Go for Moon Descent

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Two Apollo 10 astronauts transferred into a fragile lunar landing craft today, reported it in "go" condition and prepared to make man's closest approach to the moon's surface, a daring descent to within 50,000 feet of the Sea of Tranquility.

Air Force Col. Thomas P. Stafford and Navy Cmdr. Eugene A. Cernan crawled through a three-foot tunnel into the spidery lunar module, or LEM, in mid-morning and began checking the craft's complex systems. They were in their second day in lunar orbit.

After an hour, in which minor communications problems were cleared up, Cernan reported: 'Snoopy is all go. I found nothing wrong with it."

Snoopy is the radio code name for the LEM. The command ship, manned by Navy Cmdr. John W. Young, is called Charlie Brown.

Stafford and Cernan leave Young alone in the command vessel at 3:05 p.m. EDT to swoop down toward a landscape which they described Wednesday in terms such as "rugged planet," "fantastic," and "out of this world."

In the most perilous moments of the mission, they twice are to skim at nine times the speed of sound just 9.3 miles over a landing site they are scouting for a July landing by two Apollo 11 astronauts.

The two spaceships were to be apart more than eight hours, with Young continuing to circle the moon at an altitude of 69 miles, ready to fly a rescue mission if Stafford and Cernan encounter trouble.

During the two flights over the landing site, the LEM pilots hope to obtain a total of 13 hours of radar ranging, photographs and visual observations.

Then they are to execute a series of tricky maneuvers to rejoin Young in the command ship, duplicating moves the Apollo 11 landers must make after they blast off the moon.

The linkup must be made if Stafford and Cernan are to get home. LEM, a little, bug-like ship, was designed to operate in airless pace and on the moon and can not return to earth.

If the maneuver is successful, and Apollo 10 flashes safely back to earth Monday, Apollo 11 will be ready to set out on the lunar landing mission 55 days later.

Ground controllers started the busy day a bit ahead of schedule at 9:45 a.m. EDT by playing a taped recording of "The Best Is Yet To Come."

"Sounded pretty good," Stafford said, "but we got an early start and I ave already had breakfast."

Monday night during the first color telecast beamed from near the moon, Stafford, Young and Cernan gave the earth a preview of what they would see.

For 29 minutes, they pointed the camera out the window and showed pictures of a bleak, barren landscape of crator-pocked plains, boulder-strewn plateaus and rugged highlands.

In color, the desolate terrain took on a brownish hue. It looked like a most inhospitable place.

The touchdown target for Apollo 11, near the crater Moltke, was in partial darkness but appeared relatively flat from the 69-mile altitude.

Although it is one of the smoothest stretches of moonscape, the area still is scarred by craters ranging from the size of a dime to a football stadium.

It is an ellipse measuring four by nine miles. From a distance, the surface resembles the "dirty beach sand" description given by the Apollo 8 astronauts who circled the moon in December.

"That's where we're going down tomorrow to photograph," Stafford told the TV audience.

Noranda Work Halts

NEW MADRID -- Work came to a halt yesterday for more than 250 construction workers at the $180 million site of the Noranda Aluminum Corporation, because of a dispute between trade unions and the Associated Natural Gas Company.

A person employed at the site said the dispute erupted when a truckload of gas piping was unloaded at Marston. The pipe was to be extended to the Noranda site from Marston - a distance of about five miles - by workers for Associated Natural Gas.

Union members, including pipe fitters, claim they should do the work, even though it is off the plant site. Employes of the gas company had planned to extend the piping up to the boundaries of the industrial park, but no further.

The dispute, the spokesman said, is not between the union and Noranda or Kaiser Engineers Inc., which is building the factory.

All tradesmen refused to show up for work yesterday. There are no picket lines, however.

City Appoints Two Additional Firemen

Sikeston City Manager W. Raymert Miller this morning confirmed the appointment of two additional firemen. The new firemen are Walter E. Wilson, 37, route three, Sikeston, and Charles Melton, 28, route two, Sikeston. Their salaries were not disclosed.

This morning's announcement brings the new Fire Department up to four men. It was announced Wednesday that Dolph Webb, 41, a former Sikeston policeman and Charleston Chief of Police, will serve as Sikeston's new fire chief, replacing Chief L. D. Ramsey, who resigned effective tomorrow. Also hired yesterday to serve on the department was James E. Brewer, 22, 202 Dorothy.

The new men were out practicing in the city this morning with a fire truck. Miller was with them. None of the men had had previous fire fighting experience.

If the new Fire Department is going to have the same number of men, then there remains one more fireman to be hired.

Chief Ramsey resigned along with assistant Chief Jack Groesbeck. Ramsey was asking for $400 annual pay increase. Groesbeck was seeking $285. The three regular firemen, Luther "Red" Hutchason, Ed Stratton and Otis Parks, resigned in support of their leaders when the city did not give the pay raises.

Burglars Hit Homestead For $15,000 in Goods

An estimated $15,000 in guns, ammunition and watches were stolen during the night from Homestead Distributing Company on East Malone Ave.

Entry into the building was made by picking a lock on an entrance door of the automotive shop.

Bruce Hampton of Homestead estimated about 100 guns, including rifles, shotguns and pistols, were stolen. Of the 100, he estimated about half the stolen weapons were pistols. He also estimated at least 20 to 25 boxes ammunition were stolen.

"They were rather selective in the merchandise they choose to steal," Hampton said. "They took the more expensive weapons and did the same with watches, which were ripped out of their cases."

Hampton believes the thief or thieves were professionals.

"They went down the line of watches and picked up the various brands, but when they came to an inexpensive time piece, it was left untouched," Hampton said.

The theft was discovered at 7 a.m. today when personnel arrived for work. The store closed 6 p.m. yesterday.

Hampton said the thieves apparently left the store in a hurry because a rifle was dropped near the door.

Cardboard boxes were emptied inside the building and employed to carry the stolen merchandise out the door. Watchboxes were strewn on the floor.

Hampton said the store's inventory check isn't yet complete, but he esumated they took about one-half he guns on display.

Autos End 33 Days Trapped in Parking Garage

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Forty-four automobiles that were trapped in a downtown hotel's parking garage for 33 days, were freed Wednesday.

The cars were brought down, two at a time, on the electric elevator that has not been in service since April 18 when it's draiveshaft broke.

Because the firm that manufactured the hoist had gone bankrupt, a new part had to be specially made and that took considerable time.

Meanwhile, the 44 cars sat in the garage of the Ben Franklin Motor Hotel, gathering dust.

A member of the hotel management staff, Don Loving, said suprisingly, only two failed to start.

Some of the cars bore license plates from states such as Tennessee, Kansas, and Pennsylvania, Loving said.

Among the last autos taken from the garage was Loving's new Valkswagen convertible which he had for only a few weeks when the elevator broke down.

Income Tax Fight Delayed

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Senate leaders decided today to wait until Monday before trying to revive a major income tax bill killed Wednesday.

Sen. A. Basey Vanlandingham, D-Columbia, the majority leader, voted "no" on the bill so he would be in position to ask reconsideration. He said today he had decided to wait until Monday in the hope a weekend of persuasion might sway some of the senators who voted against the bill to change their minds.

All five Kansas City senators voted against it. Apparently some of them were miffed at the Senate's action in refusing to put back in the appropriation bills the $460,000 they wanted to start work on a new medical school in Kansas City.

The income tax fight took up most of the day Wednesday. add income tax page 1 rosie

Sen. T. D. McNeal, D - St. Louis, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, said he would seek reconsideration whenever he has the necessary 18 votes to pass the bill.

It is one of the major bills in Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' $70 million income tas package. It would raise about $18 million a year by preventing corporations from using their federal income taxes as deductions on their state returns.

Still pending is a companion measure to raise both individual and corporate income tax rates. It is not expected to be taken up until the first bill is disposed of.

McNeal described passage of the bills as essential to the future of state aid for schools, welfare, mental health and other major programs. If additional revenue is not raised now, he predicted the legislature would be called back in July to do the job under the pressures of a 60-day special session.

Once the revenue bills are passed, he said there would be no trouble in passing tax collection speedup bills which have been held back in his committee until the revenue measures are cleared. The acceleration bills would provide a one-shot windfall of about $60 million a year.

Both Republicans and Democrats joined in opposing the bill to disallow federal taxes as deductions on state returns. Opponents charged the bill was an indirect tax increase and would fall most heavily on small businessmen.

McNeal and other proponents pointed out Missouri's corporate income taxes have not been changed in 38 years.

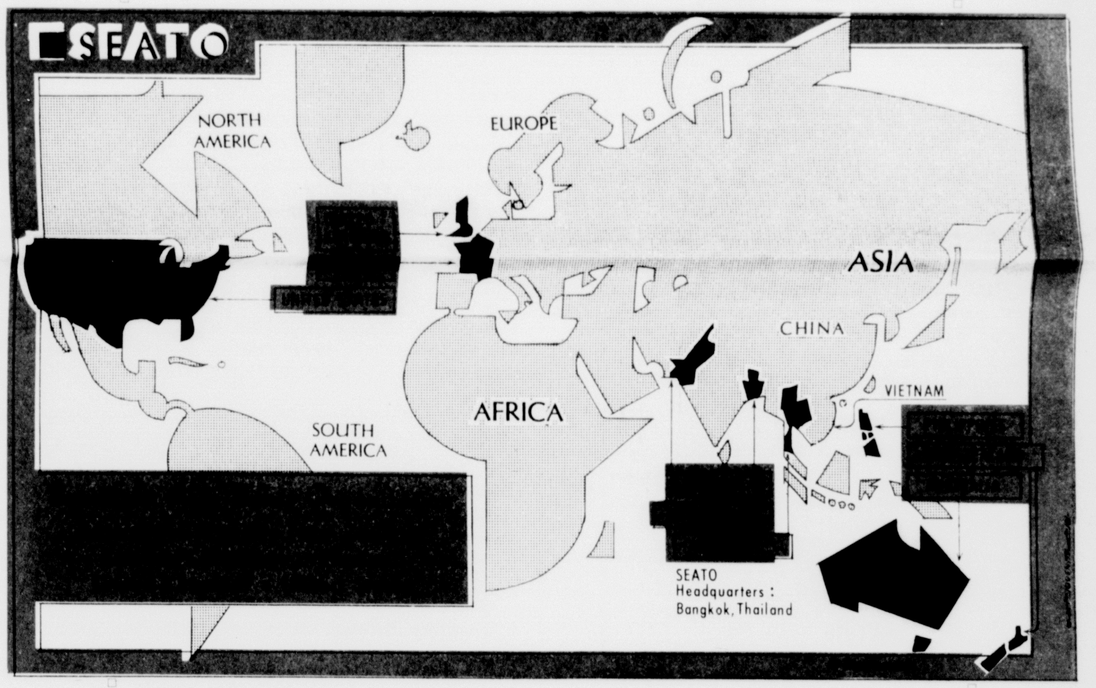

And McNeal noted that while corporate taxes have stayed the same, the sales tax which falls most heavily on the poor has been increased from ½ to 3 per cent since 1934.

Industrial Seminar Set Here Monday

The State Department of Industry and Commerce in Jefferson City announced this morning that Harold Thomas and Jack Hale of the departmnt will conduct an Industrial Seminar Monday night in Sikeston.

The seminar is sponsored by the Sikeston Chamber of Commerce Industrial Committee and will be held at 6 p.m. in the community room of the Security National Bank. O. D. Clayton, Chamber manager, urges that all chamber members and Sikeston businessmen to attend the three-hour session.

Clayton said the seminar is being conducted to inform citizens that a city should do to procur new industry. He explained that most prospective industries go through the state department first before contacting prospective cities.

Living Costs Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Living costs rose six-tenths of 1 per cent in April to continue the sharpest upward price spiral in more than a decade, the Labor Department reported today.

The increase pushed the government's consumer price index to 126.4, meaning it cost $12.64 last month for the same amount of typical family purchases that cost $10 in the 1957-59 period on which the index is based.

In the past three months, prices have risen at an annual rate of 7.6 per cent, the steepest rise for a comparable period since 1956, said the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Food, housing and medical care costs rose seven-tenths of 1 per cent each, clothing prices went up six-tenths and transportation two-tenths, the bureau said.

Farmer Reject Cotton Transfers

CHARLESTON -- Mississippi County farmers have rejected the right to transfer cotton acreage allotments on their 1969 planting assignments, George Roberts, manager of the county ASC office revealed today.

Roberts said that the farmers voted 200-86 against allowing the re-assignment of their acreages. The protest was larger this year than in 1968 when 186 voted not to transfer and 112 came out for the right to allocate their allotments, office records show.

Suspect in Custody

LEROY Brazel, 37, Scott City, is in the Scott County jail at Benton charged with auto theft and burglary and stealing, Sheriff John Dennis said this morning. Dennis transported Brazel yesterday from Vienna, Ill., where he was apprehended Tuesday.

Brazel is accused of stealing a 1964 Cadillac and $1500 in cash and checks from the Semo Motor Company in Sikeston. Dennis said Brazel will be arraigned Tuesday in Magistrate Court at Sikeston.

Burger Fits Nixon's Idea of Law and Order Type of Judge

WASHINGTON (AP) — While President Nixon was campaigning for election last year, he promised to appoint a chief justice who believes in "a strict interpretation of the Supreme Court's role."

By his reputation in legal circles, Warren Earl Burger appears to meet Nixon's requirements as a "strict constructionist" of the Constitution. He also appears unlikely to raise objections of Capitol Hill liberals.

Burger, a 61-year-old federal Circuit Court judge here for 13 years, is not the activist that his predecessor, Earl Warren, is. And his presence on the high court may make a difference in interpreting the rights of criminal suspects and defendants. Some recent cases have been decided by only a 5-4 vote.

Burger should have no difficulty in accustoming himself to the high court, however, since the Circuit Court has experienced most of the divisions that afflict the nation's highest court except for the problems of federal-state relations and, with a few exceptions, civil rights.

He is considered a liberal on civil rights. His best known decision in this field is his ruling that the Federal Communications Commission must listen to the complaints of Negroes in the Mississippi community served by a radio station whose license was up for renewal.

The White House said in a statement that Burger has urged those seeking his judicial philosophy to "read my opinions and draw your own conclusions."

But it added that Burger's personal philosophy of government is reflected in a 1967 commencement address at Ripon College in Wisconsin.

"Governments exist chiefly to foster the rights and interest of its citizens—to protect their homes and property, their persons and their lives," he said then. "If a government fails in this basic duty it is not redeemed by providing even the most perfect system for the protection of the rights of defendants in the criminal courts."

At another point in his speech, Burger said, "We know that a nation or a community which has no rules and no laws is not a society but an anarchy in which no rights, either individual or collective, can survive."

"Our system of criminal justice, like our entire political structure was based on the idea of striking a fair balance between the needs of society and the rights of the individual," he added.

Burger is a Presbyterian.

House Approves Bill to Let Cities Levy Sales Tax

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A bill authorizing Missouri cities to levy a sales tax of up to 1 per cent and so help solve their financial problems, passed the House today.

The bill went to the Senate on a 119-18 vote. There was almost no discussion as the bill whipped through.

It would let cities of more than 200 population levy a tax on sales equal to either ½ of 1 per cent or a full 1 per cent if the voters approved. The state would collect the local sales tax along with the state sales tax and refund the city portions.

A plan for penitentiary prisoner furloughs was killed earlier on a 60-74 vote.

One opponent, Rep. Earl Horn, D-St. Louis, called it a vacation plan for convicts and said it offered a policy of "commit crime now and pay later at your convenience."

Sponsors insisted it would go far in rehabilitating lawbreakers because it would convince them they had not just been shut away from the rest of the world. It has the strong support of Missouri's directors of corrections, Fred T. Wilkinson, they said.

Another opponent, Rep. Edna Eads, R-Bonne Terre, said "if these people want to stay with their families all they have to do is obey the law in the first place."

The bill would have permitted furloughs of up to 30 days a year for "good risk" prisoners for good reasons— such as funerals of relatives, severe sickness, the delivery of a wife's baby, seeing about a job or reestablishing family ties just before final release.

At least one other state, Mississippi, has operated under such a law successfully for some time, sponsors said.

The House also killed a bill sponsors said would have upgraded the cosmetology trade. The vote was 65-68.

Opponents said it would bar a lot of young women from becoming beauticians and would force others to quit. They said it would end the operation of beauty parlors in the owners' homes.

Sponsors said it would not, that it would only prevent the operation of beauty parlors in rooms that also are used for living purposes.

Wednesday, the sponsor of a beleaguered bill to repeal Missouri's bounty on predatory animals abandoned it. Rep. Tony: 2nd graf m 21.

SEATO Meets Amidst Criticism

By PETER O'LOUGHLIN

BANGKOK (AP) — This week's council meeting of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization takes place amidst a growing tide of criticism leveled against Asia's only regional defense organization, set up in 1954 in Manila as a bulwark against Communist military expansion.

The criticism has come in part from its members, some of whom claim SEATO is a paper tiger that should be reformed, revitalized or abolished altogether.

One of the chief critisms is that SEATO lacks political unity, has no army, no teeth and thus no credibility as a deterrent to Communist expansion.

The Philippine foreign secretary, Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, recently appointed a seven-man advisory council to review the Philippines' position on SEATO.

Reflecting strong Filipino misgivings about the aims of the organization, the committee was asked to determine whether SEATO was fulfilling its role, and if not, to recommend whether it should be abolished or reorganized.

Thailand, probably the strongest SEATO advocate among the eight member nations, also wants the alliance revamped, but not abolished.

"We are not overpleased with it," Thai Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman said recently, "But we do not favor disbanding it until we have something better to replace it."

Thanat suggested there should be a "reorientation of SEATO from a mere military alliance to a more political forum."

He said the need to make SEATO more political than military stemmed from the fact that European members of the alliance, Britain and France, were becoming less and less militarily involved in Asia.

The British military withdrawal from Asia, to be completed by 1971, has further weakened the military aspect of SEATO. Although the British have promised to send troops to the SEATO banner if needed.

Few SEATO members, particularly the Asian ones, think this is likely.

France, a founding member, has boycotted council meetings for the last three years and did not send a delegation this year.

Australia, New Zealand and the United States are heavily committed in Asia and particularly in Vietnam.

But many Asian leaders, despite American assurances to the contrary, believe the U.S. is preparing to withdraw militarily from the Asian mainland once the Vietnam war is over.

This would further rob SEATO of its most powerful, battle-ready member and leave a vast military power vacuum in the area.

Australia and New Zealand, both with permanent bases and army, navy and air force units in Malaysia and Singapore, do not have the military muscle to assume America's role.

For this reason, some Asian leaders, notably in Thailand, South Korea and Nationalist China have been speaking in recent months about an enlarged Asian military alliance, without direct U.S. involvement, but with implicit U.S. support.

This, according to some SEATO sources, is a possible alternative to SEATO.

As it stands, now, SEATO is powerless to intervene militarily anywhere in the region unless asked to. According to SEATO Secretary General Jesus Vargas, SEATO is set up to combat overt or open aggression, particularly by Communist China.

All of SEATO's military planning is premised precisely on the possibility of subversion developing into insurgency and limited war, Vargas said in a recent speech. "The true worth of SEATO's military preparedness has lain mainly in its deterrent value."

But in the 15 years since its formation, SEATO has hardly deterred the Communists one whit. Vietnam has erupted for the second time, the political and military situation in Laos has worsened and Thailand is fighting a serious guerrilla war.

SEATO, however, is not equipped to handle, and its planning barely takes into account, the now traditional Communist methods of infiltration and subversion that torment Laos, Thailand and Vietnam.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
INFLATION STILL AHEAD

The U. S. Labor Department's consumer price index for April is scheduled for release in the next few days.

The American housewife and her breadwinner and due for a shock like the one they got last month. It will be a setback for the Nixon administration, too. The consumer price index in March rose at a 9.6 per cent annual rate. Administration sources imply that the rises in April, when announced, will be as jolting.

Special attention will center on the index for food prices. As a savvy financial editor observed during a similar pinch three years ago: "The grocery store, after all, is where most families see a reflection of the cost of living."

Paul W. McCracken, Chairman of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers, on May 7 told the Society of American Business Writers that "ultimately" the administration's deflationary program would take hold. The wait is an agonizing one for low and middle income families.

"Highest cattle prices in 17 years." That's the bold headline in an Iowa paper, and it explains a good deal of what's happening. The authoritative FARM JOURNAL tells cattlemen: "Two dollars to $3 (a hundredweight) higher, with prices mostly steady compared to early spring levels is the way fed cattle markets are trending for the next 90 days."

The U. S. Department of Agriculture said on May 8 that food prices are rising at an even higher rate than estimated in February, though not as much as in 1968. A Department economist reported that retail food prices are now expected to average about 3 per cent above 1968. In February the rise for the year has been estimated at 2.5 per cent at the most.

Consumer demand continues unabated. K. Gilbert Novotny, president of the St. Louis National Stockyards Co., where the price of steers jumped $6 to $33.25 per cwt. told a wire service that people are asking for luxury cuts of meat. Shortages of other luxury foods are pulling up the general price average.

Novotny suggests that housewifes tired of paying high prices should stop buying beef. Scattered buying resistance is reported -- in Cleveland and Baltimore, for example. U. S. NEWS & WORLD REPORT quotes the wife of an art director in the Chicago area: "The rising food prices are frightening. The only answer is to watch the ads carefully and shop comparatively. It is vital to make a list of the necessities and stick to it."

The American housewife is patient and long-suffering, but she is also practical and hard-headed. Rising disposable income so far has damped down resistance to high prices. But meat strikes and food boycotts are a possibility.

A wave of protests over high food prices in October 1966 erupted into mass action. On Oct. 17 of that year up to 10,000 housewives dressed in slacks, jeans, and jumpers, picketed five Denver supermarket chains, chanting, "down with frills, stamps, and gimmicks."

Food prices did go down sharply in the fall of 1966, whatever the reason. Prof. Otto Eckstein of Harvard University observes: "There is a sort of random, uncontrollable element in inflation which makes the record of the last few months seem worse than the underlying situation." Prof. Eckstein says meat and egg prices will go down. They always do, of course -- until they go up again.

YEAR OF THE MAYORS

The election - eve favorite in the voting for mayor of Los Angeles on Tuesday, May 27, is a Negro and former policeman, and in this year of municipal elections, both blacks and policemen have been faring well. He is 52-year-old Councilman Thomas Bradley, retired after 21 years on the L. A. police force. In the primary election, April 1, Bradley got 42 per cent of the vote to 27 per cent for 59-year-old incumbent Mayor Sam Yorty.

Race is a below - the - surface issue in another important mayoralty election in the offing. On June 10, voters in Minneapolis choose between a police department detective, Charles S. Stenvig, a vice president of the International Confederation of Police Associations who has come to city council meetings with a revolver in the belt of his civilian suit, is running on a law - and - order program. His stunning upset in the April 29 primary was attributed to an outpouring of white backlash and anti-tax sentiment.

A host of mayoralty offices are up for grabs in this year's elections, most of them in November. In addition to the above, elections are scheduled in New York, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Atlanta, and Cleveland. In the latter city Carl B. Stokes (D), the nation's first popularly elected mayor in a large city, must face the voters again. In Pittsburgh, Atlanta, and many other big cities, incumbents are turning down another term, claiming the burdens of the mayor's office are just too, too tough.

In early races in this Year of the Mayors, blacks have done, well, even in the South. Howard A. Lee of Chapel Hill, N. C., the son of a Negro sharecropper, on May 6 became the first Negro in modern days to be elected mayor of a predominantly white Southern town. More remarkable, perhaps, was the thumping victory on May 13 in Fayette, Miss., of Charles Evers, brother of the late Medgar Evers.

SOME IRREVERENT PREDICTIONS

In a recent article in Human Events, Terry Catchpole who is a noted writer and contributing editor to numerous publications takes a look into the future – with his tongue-in-cheek and his fingers crossed.

We quote . . . "testing the winds of change we most resolutely attempt to decipher what the mystical future has in store. Remember that, had you predicted 25 years ago some of the events that have happened in the interim, nobody would have believed you. With this in mind, and with nary a nod in the direction of Jeane Dixon, I unhesitatingly make a few forecasts for the future:

"The wage-price spiral will continue upward, until it is taller than the Empire State building. At this time it will be declared a National Landmark and be removed to Fort Knox for safekeeping.

"Ted Kennedy will run for the presidency of the United States, the only question being whether or not he can wait until 1972. If he cannot, the Constitution will have to be changed so he can run in 1971.

"John-John Kennedy will not run for the U. S. presidency. He will join the Greek army and be promoted to the presidency of Greece.

"During a renovation of the Capitol building, workmen will discover that the debt ceiling is a phony and that the real ceiling collapsed five years ago under the weight of a ton of fool's gold.

"John Lindsay will continue to be a political force -- in his family. That is, unless wife Mary decides to run against him in a family primary.

"Nelson Rockefeller will be re-elected New York governor in 1970, again in 1974, again in 1978, again in 1982 . . . Eventually New Yorkers will discover their governor has been dead for five years and that the government was being run out of Madison Avenue.

"Mao Tse-tung and Chiang Kai-shek will pass away within two days of each other and six billion Chinese will wander around the world working for a leader . . .

"The United States will not recognize Red China. After all, the way it daily changes its complexion, and because so few have ever seen it up close, who could recognize it?

"It will be discovered that the current worldwide 'student revolution' is indeed an international conspiracy, run out of Zurich by an expatriate Lebanese homosexual dwarf who has been angry at colleges in general ever since he received an 'F' in Advance Sanskrit at the University of Beirut.

"Liberals will continue to oppose deployment of defense weapons and other forms of national security; the reason being they enjoy their guilt feelings, and how can you feel good guilt when you're secure?

"The 'War on Poverty' will be revised, re-designed and re-directed in a more realistic approach to the problem. It will also be more correctly renamed 'The War on Wealth.'

"Federal expenditures will continue to mount until fiscal year 1983 when the government's budget will equal the total amount of money in circulation in the United States. The White House will decide to suspend all government services and redistribute all the money available by flinging it from a fleet of helicopters deployed across the nation. The people, however, will decide they want nothing to do with the filthy stuff and hubcaps will become the new monetary unit.

"Fighting will continue in Southeast Asia, not because of U. S. involvement or Communist aggression, but because Asians love to fight.

"As a further precaution against Soviet Attack, the U. S. government will erect a high tariff barrier composed of cotton and steel. Soviet warheads will thus be easily repulsed and there will be a big boom in Canadian real estate.

"U. S. policy toward Europe will continue to be based on the same principle as it has in the past: extreme flexibility. NATO will eventually be transformed into a military retirement home and the Common Market will have to start giving away trading stamps to attract customers."

Maybe you have a few forecasts you'd like to add to these, but we've had enough for the day.

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — Oh, to be in Gotham, now that spring is here.

Browning never wrote it that way, but then Browning never saw a miniskirt. And the miniskirt capital of the world is located, according to some competent critics, in Manhattan.

Testing that proposition, I made inquiry the other day of a new arrival from Iowa.

"Do the girls dress like that in Des Moines?" I asked.

"Gosh no," said he.

There was a time last winter when I feared for the miniskirt trend.

The gals seemed to be swapping short skirts for long pants at an alarming rate. But now the onset of fine weather indicates they merely were protecting themselves from the cold blasts of winter rather than from the hot stares of girl watchers.

With spring dresses abloom, you would think the watchers would be out in force. I suppose they are, but not hereabouts in the sense of standing on the corner and watching the pretty girls go by. You stand on the corner of Fifth Avenue and 51st Street, say, and you're likely to find yourself trampled underfoot by mostly female phalanxes. The sidewalk traffic, as well as the auto traffic, is simply awe inspiring.

Pursuing my editorial investigations, I asked one of the stenographers in the office what she thought of the mini trend.

"It really is something," she conceded. "Going through some stores last weekend I was shocked by the clothes on the manikins. The skirts were up to here."

She indicated an interesting anatomical bench mark, considerably above the reach of her own mini.

Being conscientious about surveys, I asked a young man too.

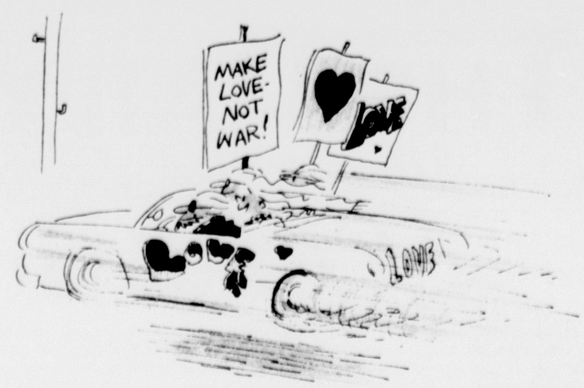

"The styles are fine by me," he said. If he was shocked, he did a good job of keeping his emotions under control.

Another youth elaborated, "You get calloused to seeing those legs, but I don't think you ever get over being surprised."

One surprise I've had to put up with lately is the appearance of sleek, dark, seamless nylon hose that extends clear out of sight and spotlights a well turned leg in a fashion never achieved by contoured stockings, knee length socks or bare skin. I cannot say, however, that this shocks me.

Of course it's us old codgers who are most immune to minishocks— for reasons other than you might suppose.

We're the ones who well remember those girls of the flaming youth generation who wore skirts not too much longer than the ones they're wearing now. And that, mind you, was before the invention of pantyhose.

"Now they won't be able to do either."

FROZEN. Because the U.S. Supreme Court let a lower court order stand, the Treasury Department estimates it will lose more than $50 million in excise taxes on truck refrigeration equipment in the period 1963-1972. Treasury claims freezing units in trucks hauling frozen food are accessories of the vehicles, hence subject to a 10% manufacturer's Federal excise tax. Challenging this ruling, one company said the refrigeration units were not accessories; therefore no tax is due. The lower court ordered a refund of $2.5 million the concern paid in taxes between 1959 and 1962, holding that the tax on accessories didn't apply to refrigeration units.

A THOUSAND SUCCESSFUL MEN

Someone has made a survey of a thousand successful men to learn how they got their start in life. These men are not mere money-makers, but they are men who have made the world better by their achievements in science, architecture, engineering, education, art, and so on. It is interesting to note the beginnings of their life work.

Three hundred started as farmers' sons. Two hundred started as messenger boys. Two hundred were newsboys. One hundred were printers' apprentices. One hundred were manufacturers' apprentices. Fifty began at the bottom of railroad work. Fifty -- only fifty had wealthy parents to give them a start.

A lazy boy did not discover the telephone. A lazy boy did not learn how to control steam, nor invent the stateam boiler. A lazy boy did not discover the power of gasoline, nor learn how to harness the falls of Niagara. No. The men who have accomplished most in the world have been men who worked hard and long before they achieved success.

A FAMOUS philosopher points out the strange fact that mankind has looked upward in admiration at the stars, forgetting that we are actually living on a star. For this earth of ours is a star. We are standing, walking, riding, sitting, sleeping, with a star underneath us. And that star has all the potentialities of heaven.

Think of that the next time you stand beneath the night sky looking up at the stars. Remember that your feet are planted on a star, and that it is up to you to help make that star bright and shining place to live.

THE STUPID GOAT

A commuting writer for The News-Sun, Kendallville, Indiana, writes of what he sees along the road to and from work: "..we've noticed a white angora billy goat with his head through the fence beside the road. He seems to be waiting patiently for help to extricate him because his horns turn back and he's caught like a fish in a gill net. He must really relish that lush grass just beyond the fence and he seems to be confident that someone will help him out. The episode struck us as being so parallel to the situation of we Americans today . . . We (so) love that lushness just beyond what comes by the sweat of our brows that we've been tempted beyond our freedom and we lose it until the man comes along to help us out . . . What would happen if that farmer got tired of loosening the stupid goat, or got sick, or involved elsewhere?"

When we expect government to solve all our problems for us and guarantee our security from the cradle to the grave, we are indeed acting like the stupid goat.

Two Trains of Thought

A YOUNG MISS HAD suffered enough during the hot day and decided to go to a secluded mill pond for a quick dip to cool off.

While she was enjoying her cool dip a littleboy came along and tied knots in her clothes. When she came out and found the problem she hunted for some type of cover. She was happy to uncover an old washtub which she held up in front of her and took out after the little boy.

"You, little brat, do you know what I'm thinking?"

"Sure,' replied the little monster, "you're thinking that tub has a bottom in it."

H.L. Hunt Says

ANOTHER UNREALISTIC RULING

The Supreme Court has gone into the "one man, one vote" concept in setting the boundaries of congressional districts and again has departed from reality in its decision. This time a divided court struck down congressional district plans in New York and Missouri.

The Missouri case shows how far the court majority has gone in requiring the impossible. That state has 10 congressional districts. The "ideal" population per district would be 431,981. In 1967 the Missouri legislature properly had taken into account such factors as the location of a university and a large military base.

But the court said this was not satisfactory. The majority ruled that unless a state can justify "any" numerical variance between districts, "no matter how small," the plan is unconstitutional.

Justice White, voting with the minority, commented that when the court finds a three per cent variation not to be constituionally permissible "it is losing perspective and sticking at a trifle." And he added that "to inject the courts into these minor squabbles is an unacceptable pre-emption of the legislative function."

That seems to be putting it mildly. This latest ruling gives strength to the rising demand for a constitutional convention, called by Congress in response to state petitions, to rewrite the rules regarding the function of the Supreme Court. Many state legislatures already have approved petitions to call such a convention. HLH

Doc. Duncan Says

Just as tax on tea was only a small grievances for the Boston Tea Party our present disorders are due to many grievances the ominous silence of older people should be a tipoff. that there is more to it than meets the eye just trying to extricate our nation from the longest, costiest war in our history how come a by resolution giving the boys in the driver seat a bland check. No declaration of war as our constitution calls for most laws that gouge the people are run through the mill by a little handful by voice vote that covers a multitude of irregularities.

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson say: Strom Thurmond and Young bride having spats; eager Junketeers skip congressional hearing on coal dust; fly to England to get information available here

WASHINGTON--Apparently the honeymoon is over for Sen. Strom Thurmond, spry 66, and his bride Nancy, a shapely 22.

Old Strom sternly lectured Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas on the Senate floor in 1966 for marrying a girl in her 20s. Not long after, the South Carolina Senator began holding hands with Nancy Moore, who had been Miss South Carolina of 1966.

They were married just before Christmas at a private ceremony that was staged in Aiken, S.C., with all the Secrecy of one of Strom's military operations. A major general in the army reserves, he used to command the army reserve unit on Capitol hill.

The couple settled blissfully in harbour square, a plush apartment complex, where Hubert Humphrey also lives. There was only one hitch: Strom's new mother-in-law, Mrs. Paul Moore, moved in with them during the honeymoon and stayed for weeks.

On at least one occasion, the Senator and Mrs. Moore drove off to the Capitol together, leaving the young bride behind. As the car took off, Sen. Thurmond turned to his wife and instructed her in a fatherly tone: "Now you go back upstairs and finish your cereal."

The other morning Strom and "Moose," as the new Mrs. Thurmond is known to friends, were quarreling when they emerged from their apartment. The argument became more heated as they prepared to drive to Capitol Hill. Suddenly, the Senator from South Carolina barged out of the car, slammed the door and abandoned his bride in the exit lane.

He approached the next car in line and demanded: "Are you going to Capitol Hill?"

The driver shook his head negatively but said he would be glad to take a detour to accomodate the Senator.

"Never Mind," grumped Thurmond, "I'll find someone else," and he continued down the line of cars looking for a ride.

Note: Sen. Thurmond and Justice Douglas, who stand at opposite ends of the political spectrum, have much in common when it comes to women. Not only did both choose wives young enough to be their granddaughters, but both previously married women less than half their age. When Strom was the 44-year-old Governor of the State he married another Miss South Carolina, 21-year-old Jean Crouch.

Both Thurmond and Douglas are also physical fitness buffs who keep in athletic trim for their young wives. Douglas likes the outdoor life--hiking, camping, mountain climbing. Thurmond does push-ups, hoists a barbell high over his bald head and, to improve his circulation, stands on his head.

--Traveling Congressmen--

A party of congressmen flew off to England and Wales the other day to gather information that they could have obtained by attending one of their own hearings.

Their pretext for the trip was to find out what the British and Welsh are doing about coal dust. Yet five of the seven junketeers weren't interested enough in coal dust to attend a hearing on the subject on the eve of their junket.

They could have learned all they wanted to know about the coal dust problem in British-Welsh mines by walking down the corridor to their hearing room. Jethro Gough, perhaps the foremost expert on coal dust in the British Isles, was available to answer questions.

As head of the Welsh National school of medicine, Gough has performed 20,000 autopsies on coal miners to discover what coal dust does to their lungs. He testified that coal dust could be fatal to miners who inhaled enough of it. He had seen cases of miners dying from black lung as early s age 44.

Only Rep. John Dent of Pennsylvania, Rep. Patsy Mink of Hawaii, both Democrats, and Rep. John Erlenborn of Illinois, a Republican, bothered to attend the hearings. But when Dent proposed a junket to the British Isles to study coal dust, five Congressmen who wouldn't walk down the corridor were eager to fly across the Atlantic to investigate the problem.

They were Reps. Roman Pucinski of Illinois, Augustus Hawkins of California, Louis Stokes of Ohio, and Bill Clay of Missouri, all Democrats, also Earl Landgrebe of Indiana, and Orval Hansen of Idaho, both Republicans, Dent and Erlenborn, though already steeped in coal dust lore, also made the trip. Only Patsy Mink saw no need to travel all the way to Europe for information about coal dust.

In fairness, Stokes has demonstrated intense interest in the coal dust problem. He personally inspected several Pennsylvania mines and later joined in sponsoring a tough bill to protect miners from Black lung.

--Other Sources Vailable--

If the Congressmen simply wanted to take a trip, they ould have saved the taxpayers a lot of money by flying up to Pittsburgh earlier this month for the American mining Congress's annual coal convention. It was attended by several British coal experts, including George W. Sanders of Britain's national coal board, who would have been willing to tell the Congressmen all about coal dust in the British isles.

For that matter, the Congressmen could merely have sent a messenger to the Bureau of mines in downtown Washington to pick up detailed reports on what England and Wales are doing about coal dust. The Bureau of mines has already spent a considerable amount of the taxpayers' money to send expeditions into the British coal dust country. The first trip produced all the information that either Congress or the Bureau should need about their coal dust problem.

A four-man government team made this trip last October--Frank C. Memmott and Earle P. Shoub, mining experts from the Bureau of Mines; Also Dr. Marcus Key and Dr. W.D.C. Morgan, medical experts from the public health service. Their 35-page report entitled "Trip Report: England and Wales," should have been adequate to make Washington fully informed on coal dust in those countries.

However, another Government mining expert, Henry Doyle, insisted upon seeing the problem for himself and wangled a trip to Britain in February to study coal dust. Now he has gone back again, accompanying the Congressmen, as their coal dust adviser.

Mafia's New Horse:
Anti-Kickback Law Begins Plugging UP Mob's Multimillion-Dollar Drain of Pension Funds

New York--From time to time, in crime-packed cities across the land, we of the anti-Mafia mafia gather with industrialists behind closeed doors and hit the businessmen with a crash course on fighting off the crime syndicates' invasion of legitimate business and unions.

Until now, none of us "instructors" has used a Trojan Horse model as a prop. That's unfortunately bad pedagogy on our part.

Unless you use the shock treatment, some executives simply don't realize hos easily their businesses and trade associations are infiltrated.

One of the conversation pieces at the sessions of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency anti-Mafia workshop here the other day was the story of the Matter Truckmen of America, Inc., of this Cosa Nostra-crammed city.

No one quite knows how it happened, but last year it was discovered that the association, biggest of its kind in the world, had named as its managing director a well-connected chap called Sam Berger, friend of Jimmy Hoffa and at least one deadly Mafia extortioner, ex-convict and power in the crime combine of the late Tommy (Three Fingers Brown) Luchese, Johnny Dio.

To add injury to insult, Mr. Berger had been indicted on charges of offering bribes and kickbacks to officials of the Teamsters Central States, Southeast and Southwest Pension Fund to obtain loans for a Cleveland manufacturer.

Well, last weekend Mr. Berger was convicted of conspiring to pay and receive kickbacks to get these mortgage loans worth more than $2 million.

Perhaps this will shake some of Mr. Berger's clients. Perhaps it might even impress some of America's most prominent entertainers for whom the enterprising Mr. Berger doubles as a theatrical booking agent. Perhaps it might affect some of the fund raisers who always give him a place of prominence at their testimonial dinners in exchange for vaudeville "talent" and, of course, the bloc sales of tickets to independent unions which are a throwback to days of gore.

But what is most impressive -- and adds a touch of heady encouragement to the instructors of this anticrime teach-in -- is the fact that the conviction of Sam Berger and some of his colleagues is the first such conviction under Title 18, U.S. Code Section 1954 - otherwise known as the anti-kickback statute.

Once more this is a fabulous victory for the Justice Dept.'s Southern District of New York, in general, and the prosecutor, Paul Rooney, in particular.

In these times of $190 billion budgets, it is difficult to excite the younger generation with talk of merely millions of dollars. But some of us middle-aged still believe that the implementing of an anti-kickback law which can stop the mob's looting of union pension funds by the millions of dollars is exceedingly impressive and exciting.

Federal sources in Washington estimate that some 8 to 10 per cent of some pension fund loans are defaulted. This has been going on for years.

The loss for all funds runs into the scores of millions. Some of this money has been lent to gambling casinos, developers of underwater real estate, and promoters of housing schemes on property which couldn't support a thatched hut. "In all," says one Justice Dept. official, "the mob and loan finders may well have cost the pension funds some $100 million over the years. True, that's a mighty small percentage of some $30 million in such funds, and it certainly is true that thousands of such funds are scrupulously honest, but the money does pour out."

One U.S. Attorney has estimated that at least $50 million of the Teamsters $500 million fund has been recklessly lent and invested.

"It's happened all over a lot from New York to Miami and points west," said he. "It will take years to unravel what has happened to money intended to cover the old age of teamsters and some other unionists. We're especially aghast at what has happened in the smaller, virtually unknown independent unions which amass as much as $15 million in funds and then juggle some of it into their general treasury. We're looking into two of those now."

Meanwhile back at the Master Truckmen of America, Inc., there is chagrin. They wonder how it happenened to their director. They should have checked. They would have found that he is an intimate of men who, like Johnny Dio, long have been linked with the Mafia.

We of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency urge trade associations all over the land to work together, set up their own intelligence system, exchange information -- and get a model of a Trogan Horse set up on the home office desk to remind officials how easily they can be infiltrated.

Ann Landers

V.D. Has Reached Epidemic Stage

Dear Ann Landers: Every time I pick up a magazine I see an article entitled "Should You Tell Your Daughter About the Pill?" I am not criticizing these articles, some of them are excellent, but what we really need is an article called, "Should I Tell My Daughter About Gonorrhea?"

What most people don't seem to know is that V.D. has reached epidemic proportions in this country. Although medical science has developed antibiotics which can cure both gonorrhea and syphillis, young people are contracting these crippling diseases and infecting one another at an alarming rate.

A great many teen-agers read your column. Please, Ann Landers, do these kids a favor and tell them where to go and what to do if they suspect they have V.D. --- Gravely Concerned Parent

Dear Parent: I urge every teen-ager who suspects he has V.D. to go to the City or County Health Department and ask to be examined and treated it necessary. V.D. is a crippler and a killer. It will not disappear without treatment. Most City and County Health departments will treat teen-agers without charge and keep the visits confidential (bless them), even though the law says minors cannot be treated without parental consent.

In my book, "Ann Landers Talks to Teen-Agers About Sex" I deal frankly with V.D. The book is now in paper back and all proceeds go to Retarded Children. It 's worth 50 cents.

Dear Ann Landers: I simply had to write and tell you how much my husband and I enjoyed your answer to that smart-alect Yale student. He wrote you that phony letter about the dope addict who fell in love with the necropheliac. (All she wanted to do was make love in the cemetery.) We laughed until we were sick.

I guess one of the reaons we appreciated your put-down is because my husband's younger brother graduated from Harvard and is now at Yale Law School. He is bright, there's no denying it, but his running commentary on the glories of Harvard were more than we could bear. Now that he's at Yale we keep getting this static about the magic combination of the two top schools in the world --- bla bla bla bla bla. It's Yawnsville.

My husband is in Law School at the University of Puerto Rico which suits us fine. Occasionally his Harvard-Yale brother will make some snide remark to let us know he doesn't think much of the U. of P.R. We clipped your column out of the San Juan Star and sent it to him just in case he missed it in the New Haven Register. Keep at it, Ann. We love you. --- D. and L.

Dear D. and L.: And I love Puerto Rico, and the San Juan Star and the New Haven Register -- also the Boston-Herald-Traveler. Thanks for writing!

Drinking may be "in" to the kids you run with -- but it can put you"out " for keeps. You can cool it and stay popular. Read "Booze and You --- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Hamlet Goes West

BARLOW'S KINGDOM. By John Redgate. Trident. $4.50.

In keeping with the fact that this is a Western (but not the usual cliche about the white-hatted good guys and the black-hatted bad guys), Redgate has written the whole narrative in a taut, terse, tight-lipped style.

The time and place — a Montana ranch just after the Civil War. Roy Barlow, who had been wounded in that conflict, returns home, wondering why his father Simon — the "king" of the whole frontier domain — had been killed in an "accident" of suspicious nature. There also was the fact that his mother had been married, almost immediately, to Simon's brother Kermit.

Roy also has come home to Kate, the girl who has waited five years while he was off to the wars. But his main attention is devoted to the mystery of his father's death, and while he does a bit of snooping around, he has a miraculous escape from being executed.

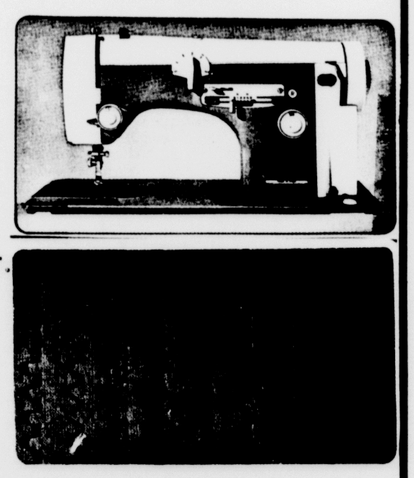

Then, in the final pages of the story, comes the big showdown, a flurry of flying lead in which vengeance is doubled and redoubled and blood flows all over the place.

It is an old-fashioned melldrammer, and when it is made into a movie there probably will be some more complaints about the amount of violence shown on the screen these days. The only thing that lifts it above the level of pulp fiction is that the author's clipped, driving, forceful prose has a certain fascination.

Royals' Owner Has Idea

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Ewing Kauffman, owner of the fledgling Kansas City Royals, wants to win an American League pennant within five years and he has a unique plan he says might provide the baseball players to do it.

What is needed is a new and untapped source of talent, he told Joe McGuff, sports editor of the Kansas City Star in an interview. And he detailed his ideas about how to find the talent.

He would set up tryouts camps all over the country to find the 24 best athletes who have not played baseball. Only over -all athletic and mental skills would be considered in choosing these 17 or 18 - year - old exceptional boys.

"If a boy has outstanding athletic ability and receives intensive instruction, I see no reason that he can't develop baseball skills," Kauffman said.

He said he hopes to have enough information to make a final decision by September whether to go ahead with the project which he estimates would cost $500,000 the first year.

"My thinking is to go into all the major cities in the country and set up tryout camps," Kauffman said. "I realize that the outstanding baseball player will be known to other organizations and will be taken in the free agent draft.

"He must be 17 or 18 and a high school graduate. This program is not designed for the college graduate. He would be too old by the time we finished developing him ... We will check these boys for speed, dexterity and depth perception. Tests also will be set up to check their mental ability.

"Not an I.Q. test. What we would need is to evaluate their ability to reason and the speed with which they reach conclusions...

"I think there are a lot of boys in slum areas with outstanding athletic ability who never get a chance to express it.

"My thought would be to sign these boys to a contract and pay them a monthly salary. We would set up a training camp in Florida. They would live there free ... the year round.

"Boys who have played baseball from nine to 16 years will have got less total practice than our boys would in 11½ months. This type of instruction would be provided for not one but two years.

"After that a boy would be ready to go out and play. If some boys show exceptional ability, we might let them play earlier in one of the rookie leagues."

"There are still a lot of things to be worked out before we make a final decision," Kauffman concluded, "but I think the idea has merit. I'd like to win a pennant in five years and I think this plan will help."

For a man whose baseball team has been in existence less than a year, this may sound like an impossible dream.

But, wrote McGuff, "it is the sort of challenge that appeals to a man who started a 156- million - dollar pharmaceutical business in the basement of his home."

Boating Tips...

SUPPORTING A BOAT

When a boat is in the water the hull is supported over the entire bottom surface by an even pressure, but on a trailer, the weight is concentrated in a few areas. The trailer you choose for your boat is one of the most important items in your outboard rig, say the boating authorities at Mercury outboards. Boaters should understand what type of support can be used and how best it can be utilized, as even the best trailer cannot give the overall support found when the boat is in the water. Outboarders should familiarize themselves with the many models on the market to find which is best for their particular boat. A too short or too long trailer or one that does not provide ample support in the right places can cause serious damage to the hull.

Mays' Blast Fatal To Cards

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Willie Mays appeared nervous in the batters' box. It was understandable, however, because the slugging Giants' center fielder was facing the Cardinals' Gary Waslewski for the first time.

The lanky St. Louis right-hander, obtained from Boston in a winter swap, delivered and Mays smashed his 592nd career homer, a two-run eighth-inning blast that boosted San Francisco to a 4-3 victory over the Cardinals Wednesday.

"I saw Waslewski pitch in the World Series two years ago," recalled Mays. "But he was new to me. It's kind of hard to figure what a guy will throw when you haven't faced him before.

"I just tried to hit the ball hard and it worked out all right," said Mays of his gamewinning blow, a 410-foot drive that made Curt Flood climb the center field fence in pursuit. It was Mays' fifth homer of the season.

Right-hander Gaylord Perry, competing his eighth game in nine starts, scattered eight hits. His record now is 7-3, his best start in the majors.

Perry survived Jim Hicks' ninth-inning homer.

"I'm not pitching any better than in the past, but the team is scoring more runs for me," Perry explained. "This was a pressure game. You have to keep alert because one pitch can cost you.

"It was a big game for us," the pitcher continued. "I hope it gets us going. We're just not playing the way we're capable."

Willie McCovey's lead-off double and Dick Dietz's two-out single gave Perry a 1-0 lead in the second inning.

Tim McCarver's homer earned a tie in the fourth, but Cards' starter Nelson Briles fell behind in the fifth.

Dietz opened with a walk, was sacrificed to second and scored on Perry's single up the middle as Flood's throw sailed over McCarver's head at the plate.

Hicks' walk and pinch hitter Joe Hague's two-out bloop double to left made it 2-2 in the seventh.

Mays stroked his homer after Ron Hunt singled off Waslewski's glove with one down in the eighth.

Continental Homes to Open New Malden Plant May 29

MALDEN -- A new $600,000 manufacturing plant at the Malden Industrial Park will begin operation Thursday, May 29.

Special ceremonies beginning at 2 p.m., will mark the official start of production for Missouri-Continental Homes, Inc., a manufacturer of sectionalized homes and small commercial buildings.

Lt. Gov. William Morris will be the featured speaker. Following the ribbon-cutting, an open house and tour of the plant will be held. The event is open to the public.

Present for the occasion in addition to Lt. Gov. Morris will be Marvin E. Mitchell, president of The Weil-McLain Company; Ralph C. Lester, board chairman of Continental Homes; O. Z. Oliver, president of Continental Homes; Jack Stapleton, Sr., chairman of the Missouri State Highway Commission; Henry Maddox, director of the State Commerce and Industrial Development Commission; Ray Jefferies and Harold Thomas of the State C.I.D.; City of Malden officials; Malden Airport Board; and other state and county officials.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, Mayor R. J. Dicks and J. D. Byrum, president of the Malden Chamber of Commerce, made a joint announcement on Oct. 31, 1968, that Continental Homes a Virginia corporation, would expand into Missouri with a new plant to locate in Malden.

On Nov. 29 Malden voters overwhelmingly approved a $300,000 industrial bond issue to underwrite the construction of a 78,000 square foot building to house the new manufacturing firm. Construction was started in February.

Robert Fitts, vice president and general manager of the Malden firm, said that his company willhave an additional $300,000 invested in the building in fixtures, equipment and materials.

Continental Homes, a subsidiary of The Weil-McLain Company, Inc., of Michigan City, Ind., is a producer of sectionalized homes, classrooms, apartment buildings, churches, banks and other small commercial type buildings.

Continental began operation in 1955 in Boones Mill, Va. It has grown at a rapid pace since that time with their sales increasing over the year. They have six plants in the state of Virginia serving parts of 14 states. The Malden plant will be number seven and will serve parts of nine state.

Actual production at the Malden plant was already started. Fitts says that six houses are now in production and that the first home will roll off the assembly line on May 29.

"We have 50 employees at the present and expect to have 150 by the end of a year's operation." he said. The employees are all local people within the Malden area.

Fitts said that Continental will be in production 12 months out of the year. "We can build houses under ideal working conditions the year around in Malden and this is what we plan to do," he said.

A major factor in Continental's selection of Missouri as an expansion site was the state's central location for national distribution. Malden was chosen because local city officials and citizens were willing to provide the necessary facilities.

Today's Health Tip

from DAVID SHY Rph

If you have a habit of saving half of an antibiotic prescription for the next time you get sick; don't do it. Be sure to take all the capsules. Most antibiotics used today do not "kill" the bug, but only depress its growth pattern allowing to die because of an interception in some metabolic process. You must continue to take the antibiotic long enough, or a regrowth will occur in later weeks.

A "SHOWBOAT" family portrait. Magnolia (Carole Sue Clayton), Kim (Judy Clayton), and Gaylord Ravenal, (Dr. Jean R. Dupont) pose on the top deck of Sikeston Little Theatres "Showboat", the "Cotton Blossom."

'Showboat' Opens With Cast of 60

A cast of 60 will present "Show Boat", Sikeston Little Theatre's last production of the season, tonight through Saturday night. Show time begins at 8 each evening at the Middle school auditorium.

The Hammerstein - Kern musical is based on life on the Mississippi in the period of 1890-1927. Musical selections in the score include "Only Make Believe", "Ol Man River", "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man", "You Are Love", "Bill", and many more.

Mrs. Carole Clayton will portray Magnolia Hawkes Ravenal, wife of the riverboat gambler.

Patsy Mitchell will play Julia LaVerne, leading lady of the 'Show Boat". Two of the songs she will be singing are "Can't Help Livin' Dat Mann" and "Bill".

Dr. Jean Dupont will make his debut in the leading role of Gaylord Ravenal, riverboat gambler. Although a newcomer to Sikeston and the Little Theatre, he has written several reviews and shows while in college. Originally from Copenhagen, Denmark, and more recently from Houston, Texas, he is a surgeon with Ferguson Medical Group.

Judy Clayton, ten-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. 'Buddy" Clayton, performs the only juvenile role in the production. Her real mother, Carole Clayton, will also fill the stage role of her mother. Judy portrays the role of Kim Ravenal.

The role of Stephen Baker, Julia LaVerne's husband, is the first leading role for Paul Parmenter, a veteran performer. A senior at Southeast Missouri State College, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Parmenter.

Associate memberships will be available at the door at each performance.

The University of Missouri - Rolla offers several credit courses at Fort Leonard Wood.

Burger Receives Warm Response From Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nomination of Warren E. Burger to be chief justice has drawn a warm response in the Senate, particularly from conservatives, indicating the veteran federal judge will have little trouble winning confirmation.

Within an hour after President Nixon's Wednesday night disclosure of his choice, Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., announced his Senate Judiciary Committee will hold hearings on Burger's nomination the first week in June.

"He is an outstanding jurist and a very fine man," declared Eastland, a persistent critic of what he terms liberal Supreme Court decisions under retiring Chief Justice Earl Warren.

Although the conservatives were the most enthusiastic, many liberals also said they approved of Burger, who is considered a generally tougher advocate of law and order measures than the majority of the current Supreme Court.

Burger has served 13 years as a judge of the federal Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

Sens. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., and Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va. - all Judiciary Committee members who opposed Abe Fortas for chief justice last year - joined Eastland in hailing the appointment.

The committee's No. 2 Republican, Roman L. Hruska of Nebraska, was enthusaiastic in his applause for the nomination.

"I am sure," said Hruska, "the Senate will give quick and enthusiastic confirmation . . . He has demonstrated many fine attainments, one of which will have an especially wide appeal, and that is his consistent support of law and order."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said the 61-year-old Burger would "make a good chief justice," adding he thinks the judge "will cut the Supreme Court's annual three-month holiday down to one month."

Gideon Man Held On Check Charge

MALDEN - A 21-year-old Malden - Gideon area man was arrested Monday for passing checks on a local bank without having funds on deposit at the bank.

Walter Jack Owens Jr., was arrested about 2:30 p.m. Monday by Chief of Police Bobby Dockins and Officer Jack Moore for allegedly passing a check on the First National Bank for $15 on May 16, and attempting to pass another for $20 on May 19 at the same store.

Owens arrest has been turned over to the office of the Dunklin County Prosecuting Attorney for filing, according to local authorities.

IT PAYED TO FIDDLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Another 20 per cent profit has been returned to investors in the hit Broadway musical, "Fiddler on the Roof." Investors have received a total 695 per cent profits on their $375,000 investment. A total of $5,212,500 has been shared equally by investors and producer Harold Prince.

Policeman Named as Rapist

ST. LOUIS (AP) - A police officer was charged with forcible rape Wednesday after four women identified him as their assailant, police said.

Several other rape victims said the officer, Patrolman Milton Brookins Jr., 25, closely resembled the man who assaulted them, police added.

One of the victims who identified Brookins as her assailant told officers the man who invaded her home wrote a note in her presence, taunting police and boasting of his act.

Investigators said boastful and taunting notes have been written by a man involved in a series of assaults in the west end area of the city since Feb. 10. The notes were signed by the "phantom rapist."

Brookins was arrested Tuesday night, shortly after he got off duty at 11 p.m. Authorities said the policeman, who is married and has a child, refused to make a statement.

In addition to the two rape charges, Brookins also was charged with stealing over $50.

Police officials said the car Brookins was driving at the time of his arrest had been rented from an agency in December and never returned.

A—Its leaves and branches point in the direction of the cardinal points of the compass.

Matthews News

MATTHEWS – The Rev. Fred E. Boren of the Canalou Baptist Church delivered the sermon at the baccalureate service held in the gymnasium Sunday evening, May 18. "March from Aida" was used as the processional and recessional. The Modern Chorale sang "Be Still and Know" and the Concert Choir sang "The Lord My Pasture Shall Prepare." They were directed by Bob Williamson and accompanied by Jan Lea Helms, who also played the marches. The invocation and benediction were given by the Reb. Herschel Yates of the Methodist Church.

Mrs. Cecile Greene, twenty years a member of the Matthews elementary school faculty who is moving to Memphis, Tenn., was guest of honor at a tea given Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Glenda Conrad with Mrs. Lucille Givens and Mrs. Beatrice Depro as co-hostesses. Twenty six faculty and secretarial women attended. Mrs. Greene was presented a silver candelabra from the group. Gifts from the group were also presented to Mrs. Shirley Wiffen and Mrs. Diane Compton who are anticipating a blessed event.

The Matthews 4-H Club will conduct a "Car-Wash" at the Fire Department from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday, May 24. Proceeds from the project will be used to help finance a two-day camp-out to be held jointly with the Canalou 4-H Club at the Peter Myers farm on June 6 and 7.

Monday guests of Mrs. Pearl Green were Mrs. Barney Blankenship of Lilbourn and her guest, Mrs. Grace Foley of London, England.

Mrs. Covie Stell visited last week in Memphis, with Mrs. Kenneth Stell.

Home Ownership—Foundation of the Nation
REALTOR® A professional in real estate who subscribes to a strict code of ethics as a member of the local and state boards and of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Q. Since the seller pays the commission, does the buyer have any obligation to the Realtor?

A. Usually, there is no legal obligation until some sort of agreement has been reached and put in writing. However, the buyer does have obligations of good manners. For example, the Realtor is a business man, and his time is money. While he will be happy to spend as much time with you as necessary to find the right home for you, when you have made an appointment with a Realtor, you should be prompt in keeping it, or, if you cannot, you should cancel as soon as possible.

Q. Logic tells me there are many reasons why I should arrange for a Realtor to sell my house, since obviously the real estate field is growing. But I can't figure out why I shouldn't sell my house myself and save the commission.

A. You are right. Logically, you should list your home with a Realtor. Here are only a few major reasons. The Realtor's stock in trade is houses, and he serves a constant flow of people -interested in buying -- really- potential customers. The Realtor can screen all those who express interest in house. Many people want only to look, others cannot afford the particular house you have for sale. If you try to sell by yourself, you have no advance "qualifying" of the prospect. You will usually feel constrained to admit to your home anyone expressing an interest, no matter what the hour and without any way of evaluating the motives. In the current market, moreover, the biggest advantage in listing with a Realtor is his guidance in helping set a realistic market price and in advising where mortgage money is available for the would - be purchaser -- knowledge the "do - it - yourself" seller rarely has.

Heckemeyer Ends Bid to Kill Bounties

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The sponsor of a beleaguered bill to repeal Missouri's bounty on predatory animals gave up Wednesday and abandoned his measure.

Rep. Tony Heckemeyer, D-Sikeston, said if House members had just let him present the facts in the case the bill would be passed overwhelmingly.

Members amended his bill after hours of argument so bounties could only be paid on coyotes. Bounties on wildcats, ground squirrels, moles and gophers would be wiped out.

The bill has moved slowly since its introduction in January but finally the House got around to debating it May 14. There were efforts to amend it sharply, even put it so far back on the legislative shelf it would take 110 members to dust it off and consider it once more.

The 97-34 vote convinced Heckemeyer to strike the bill from the calendar. House members responded with appropriate - but badly rendered wolf calls.

Some members no doubt remember the testimony of one irate farmer who was critical of the State Conservation Department's efforts to train farmers to trap bothersome wolves.

The farmer told a committee considering the bill about two weeks ago he had received a trap from the department but the only things he caught were his neighbor's dog and cat.

The Standard has under way the Year Book for the Will Mayfield College of Marble Hill, Mo. It will contain many excellent photos of faculty, pupils, scenes, etc., and should add to the standing of that, already noted, educational institution. The book will contain 100 pages of matter, be printed on heavy enamel paper, tied with the colors of the college. It is expected to be in the hands of the patrons by the 15th of June.

Mr. and Mrs. W.H. Tanner and two children accompanied by Angie Austin, left Tuesday afternoon to spend the summer at the Tanner home on Manhattan Beach. Miss Eva Hess will follow them in two weeks, for an extensive visit and Miss Mildred Davis will also visit there during the summer months.

The original Phil Baxter and his ten rough riding Texas Tommies will charge into Sikeston for a dance engagement at the Fairgrounds pavilion Monday night, for the only dance presentation in Southeast Missouri. The promoters, Ernest Harper, Denny Murphy, Byron Bowman, C.L. Blanton, jr., and Brown Jewell, have agreed upon a gate admission charge of 50 cents each and an additional charge of $2 per couple for dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Woodney of this city are parents of a baby girl born early Wednesday morning at the hospital.

Dr. G.W. Presnell is still to be found on duty, the victim of a "sympathetic" limp not withstanding. According to his secretary, Miss Dorothy Walker, the Doctor attended the ball game Sunday and injured his ankle by violently jumping up and down while rooting for the locals. The limp became more pronounced as sympathetic observers commented upon the fact.

J.D. Bruce, 11 years old, in his language, "has had every thing about himself broke, but his neck and I guess that's next." J.D. was jumping the hedge at the Mag Tanner residence last Monday night with the aid of a stick when his foot became caught and he stumbled and fell breaking his right arm. The injured member was set by Dr. T.C. McClure. Thus far, he says, I've had my left collar bone broken three times, my right one once, my leg once, left arm once, and now my right arm is in a sling. Guess my neck is next.

If You Were the Judge

Preacher Falls in Grave

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

The Rev. Goodman, presiding at a cemetery burial, took his text and preached from it, far from it. He disappeared suddenly into an open grave when he slipped on a fake grass mat that had been placed over an adjacent memorial slab for appearance's sake.

His Houdini-like departure, fortunately, produced an immediate search. In short order he was hoisted out of his untimely grave, dripping from mud, and he sued the undertaker for his injuries.

"He was careless in not providing a safe site for the burial," complained the irate minister in court. "It was my job to lead the deceased to heaven and not to follow him there."

"I can't be held responsible for what happened," answered the undertaken. "Everything was wet and slippery due to God's rain. As a minister, the Rev. Goodman should have been in better touch with God's work, not blaming me for it."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the undertaker responsible for the Reverend's sudden disappearance and injuries?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! He held that an undertaker, or the person charged with the responsibility, if it is someone else, must take proper steps to see to it that a grave site is reasonably safe, or, at least, he must warn those attending the funeral of any hazards that exist.

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, May 22, the 142nd day of 1969. There are 223 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1946 the socalled "Truman Doctrine"—to stem the spread of communism—went into effect as the U.S. Congress appropriated $400 million for military and economic aid to Greece and Turkey.

On this date:

In 1807, Aaron Burr was put on trial in Richmond, Va., for treason.

In 1819, for the first time, an American-made steamship, the Savannah, set out for a transatlantic voyage.

In 1918, German planes riddled Paris during World War I.

In 1943, the Soviet Union announced the dissolution of the Communits International. The Comintern had been formed 24 years earlier to promote world revolution.

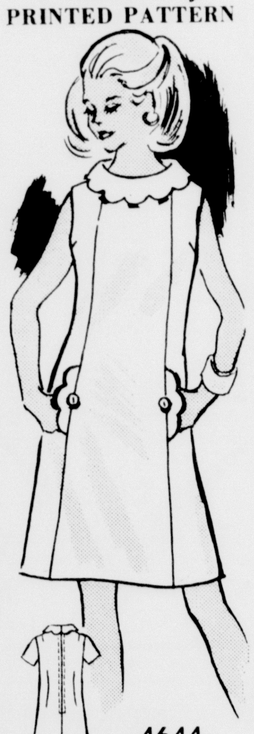

In 1944, during World War II, U.S. heavy bombers raided Kiel, Germany.

Ten years ago: A proposal to establish a United Nations garrison in West Berlin was being opposed by U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold.

Five years ago: U.S. jet planes were flying reconnaissance missions over northern Laos to check on the activity of pro-Communist forces. The Laotian government had requested the flights.

One year ago: The Charles de Gaulle regime in France was upheld as a censure moved in the National Assembly failed by 11 votes.

FDA Weighing Evidence of Birth Control Pill Side Effects

WASHINGTON (AP) — An advisory committee of the Food and Drug Administration is meeting behind closed doors this week to shift anew mounting evidence birth control pills can harm and even kill.

It already has issued two widely publicized reports on oral contraception and the current meeting is aimed toward a third that likely will be tougher than anything it has said so far.

"I think there is a growing awareness of the multiple effects on women," said one committee member who asked not to be quoted by name."

"if I was in private practice," he said, "I would prescribe the pill for certain women. But the key words are certain women."

Although the member declined to say how many on the committee share his views - if any - he said, "There is no conflict."

The new report is not expected until sometime this fall at the earliest, but the committee's meetings here today and Friday come on the heels of two signficiant events.

The National Institute of Health earlier this month said clinical trials showed that a common birth control pill component caused breast cancer in dogs and should be considered a risk for women.

Bearing the NIH stamp, the report by Dr. Roy Hertz was the most authoritative link between breast cancer and the pill to date. Hertz warned however, his data was preliminary and required much more study.

While this added new weight to rising criticism of the pill, another development followed on May 14 -announcement that an effective and perhaps safer minipill had been developed.

Dr. Somers A. Sturgis of the Harvard medical school told an international symposium that a lower strength hormone pill had been found effective in tests on some 4,700 women. He said the new pill was more effective than an intrauterine device -IUD - which got high marks from the FDA Advisory Committee in its second major report in January 1968.

Birth control pills was first provided for general use in 1961 and gained new users steadily until 1964 when 1.7 million women began using it.

The total of new users has fallen off steadily since to about half a million last year when a total of 7 million were estimated to have taken it at one time or another.

Conditions Go for Moon Descent

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Two Apollo 10 astronauts transferred into a fragile lunar landing craft today, reported it in "go" condition and prepared to make man's closest approach to the moon's surface, a daring descent to within 50,000 feet of the Sea of Tranquility.

Air Force Col. Thomas P. Stafford and Navy Cmdr. Eugene A. Cernan crawled through a three-foot tunnel into the spidery lunar module, or LEM, in mid-morning and began checking the craft's complex systems. They were in their second day in lunar orbit.

After an hour, in which minor communications problems were cleared up, Cernan reported: "Snoopy is all go. I found nothing wrong with it."

Snoopy is the radio code name for the LEM. The command ship, manned by Navy Cmdr. John W. Young, is called Charlie Brown.

Stafford and Cernan leave Young alone in the command vessel at 3:05 p.m. EDT to swoop down toward a landscape which they described Wednesday in terms such as "rugged planet," "fantastic," and "out of this world."

In the most perilous moments of the mission, they twice are to skim at nine times the speed of sound just 9.3 miles over a landing site they are scouting for a July landing by two Apollo 11 astronauts.

The two spaceships were to be apart more than eight hours, with Young continuing to circle the moon at an altitude of 69 miles, ready to fly a rescue mission if Stafford and Cernan encounter trouble.

During the two flights over the landing site, the LEM pilots hope to obtain a total of 13 hours of radar ranging, photographs and visual observations.

Then they are to execute a series of tricky maneuvers to rejoin Young in the command ship, duplicating moves the Apollo 11 landers must make after they blast off the moon.

The linkup must be made if Stafford and Cernan are to get home. LEM, a little, bug-like ship, was designed to operate in airless pace and on the moon and can not return to earth.

If the maneuver is successful, and Apollo 10 flashes safely back to earth Monday, Apollo 11 will be ready to set out on the lunar landing mission 55 days later.

Ground controllers started the busy day a bit ahead of schedule at 9:45 a.m. EDT by playing a taped recording of "The Best Is Yet To Come."

"Sounded pretty good," Stafford said, "but we got an early start and I ave already had breakfast."

Monday night during the first color telecast beamed from near the moon, Stafford, Young and Cernan gave the earth a preview of what they would see.

For 29 minutes, they pointed the camera out the window and showed pictures of a bleak, barren landscape of crator-pocked plains, boulder-strewn plateaus and rugged highlands.

In color, the desolate terrain took on a brownish hue. It looked like a most inhospitable place.

The touchdown target for Apollo 11, near the crater Moltke, was in partial darkness but appeared relatively flat from the 69-mile altitude.

Although it is one of the smoothest stretches of moonscape, the area still is scarred by craters ranging from the size of a dime to a football stadium.

It is an ellipse measuring four by nine miles. From a distance, the surface resembles the "dirty beach sand" description given by the Apollo 8 astronauts who circled the moon in December.

"That's where we're going down tomorrow to photograph," Stafford told the TV audience.

Noranda Work Halts

NEW MADRID -- Work came to a halt yesterday for more than 250 construction workers at the $180 million site of the Noranda Aluminum Corporation, because of a dispute between trade unions and the Associated Natural Gas Company.

A person employed at the site said the dispute erupted when a truckload of gas piping was unloaded at Marston. The pipe was to be extended to the Noranda site from Marston - a distance of about five miles - by workers for Associated Natural Gas.

Union members, including pipe fitters, claim they should do the work, even though it is off the plant site. Employes of the gas company had planned to extend the piping up to the boundaries of the industrial park, but no further.

The dispute, the spokesman said, is not between the union and Noranda or Kaiser Engineers Inc., which is building the factory.

All tradesmen refused to show up for work yesterday. There are no picket lines, however.

City Appoints Two Additional Firemen

Sikeston City Manager W. Raymert Miller this morning confirmed the appointment of two additional firemen. The new firemen are Walter E. Wilson, 37, route three, Sikeston, and Charles Melton, 28, route two, Sikeston. Their salaries were not disclosed.

This morning's announcement brings the new Fire Department up to four men. It was announced Wednesday that Dolph Webb, 41, a former Sikeston policeman and Charleston Chief of Police, will serve as Sikeston's new fire chief, replacing Chief L. D. Ramsey, who resigned effective tomorrow. Also hired yesterday to serve on the department was James E. Brewer, 22, 202 Dorothy.

The new men were out practicing in the city this morning with a fire truck. Miller was with them. None of the men had had previous fire fighting experience.

If the new Fire Department is going to have the same number of men, then there remains one more fireman to be hired.

Chief Ramsey resigned along with assistant Chief Jack Groesbeck. Ramsey was asking for $400 annual pay increase. Groesbeck was seeking $285. The three regular firemen, Luther "Red" Hutchason, Ed Stratton and Otis Parks, resigned in support of their leaders when the city did not give the pay raises.

Burglars Hit Homestead For $15,000 in Goods

An estimated $15,000 in guns, ammunition and watches were stolen during the night from Homestead Distributing Company on East Malone Ave.

Entry into the building was made by picking a lock on an entrance door of the automotive shop.

Bruce Hampton of Homestead estimated about 100 guns, including rifles, shotguns and pistols, were stolen. Of the 100, he estimated about half the stolen weapons were pistols. He also estimated at least 20 to 25 boxes ammunition were stolen.

"They were rather selective in the merchandise they choose to steal," Hampton said. "They took the more expensive weapons and did the same with watches, which were ripped out of their cases."

Hampton believes the thief or thieves were professionals.

"They went down the line of watches and picked up the various brands, but when they came to an inexpensive time piece, it was left untouched," Hampton said.

The theft was discovered at 7 a.m. today when personnel arrived for work. The store closed 6 p.m. yesterday.

Hampton said the thieves apparently left the store in a hurry because a rifle was dropped near the door.

Cardboard boxes were emptied inside the building and employed to carry the stolen merchandise out the door. Watchboxes were strewn on the floor.

Hampton said the store's inventory check isn't yet complete, but he estimated they took about one-half he guns on display.

Income Tax Fight Delayed

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Senate leaders decided today to wait until Monday before trying to revive a major income tax bill killed Wednesday.

Sen. A. Basey Vanlandingham, D-Columbia, the majority leader, voted "no" on the bill so he would be in position to ask reconsideration. He said today he had decided to wait until Monday in the hope a weekend of persuasion might sway some of the senators who voted against the bill to change their minds.

All five Kansas City senators voted against it. Apparently some of them were miffed at the Senate's action in refusing to put back in the appropriation bills the $460,000 they wanted to start work on a new medical school in Kansas City.

The income tax fight took up most of the day Wednesday. add income tax page 1 rosie

Sen. T. D. McNeal, D - St. Louis, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, said he would seek reconsideration whenever he has the necessary 18 votes to pass the bill.

It is one of the major bills in Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' $70 million income tas package. It would raise about $18 million a year by preventing corporations from using their federal income taxes as deductions on their state returns.

Still pending is a companion measure to raise both individual and corporate income tax rates. It is not expected to be taken up until the first bill is disposed of.

McNeal described passage of the bills as essential to the future of state aid for schools, welfare, mental health and other major programs. If additional revenue is not raised now, he predicted the legislature would be called back in July to do the job under the pressures of a 60-day special session.

Once the revenue bills are passed, he said there would be no trouble in passing tax collection speedup bills which have been held back in his committee until the revenue measures are cleared. The acceleration bills would provide a one-shot windfall of about $60 million a year.

Both Republicans and Democrats joined in opposing the bill to disallow federal taxes as deductions on state returns. Opponents charged the bill was an indirect tax increase and would fall most heavily on small businessmen.

McNeal and other proponents pointed out Missouri's corporate income taxes have not been changed in 38 years.

And McNeal noted that while corporate taxes have stayed the same, the sales tax which falls most heavily on the poor has been increased from ½ to 3 per cent since 1934.

Industrial Seminar Set Here Monday

The State Department of Industry and Commerce in Jefferson City announced this morning that Harold Thomas and Jack Hale of the departmnt will conduct an Industrial Seminar Monday night in Sikeston.

The seminar is sponsored by the Sikeston Chamber of Commerce Industrial Committee and will be held at 6 p.m. in the community room of the Security National Bank. O. D. Clayton, Chamber manager, urges that all chamber members and Sikeston businessmen to attend the three-hour session.

Clayton said the seminar is being conducted to inform citizens that a city should do to procur new industry. He explained that most prospective industries go through the state department first before contacting prospective cities.

Autos End 33 Days Trapped in Parking Garage

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Forty-four automobiles that were trapped in a downtown hotel's parking garage for 33 days, were freed Wednesday.

The cars were brought down, two at a time, on the electric elevator that has not been in service since April 18 when it's draiveshaft broke.

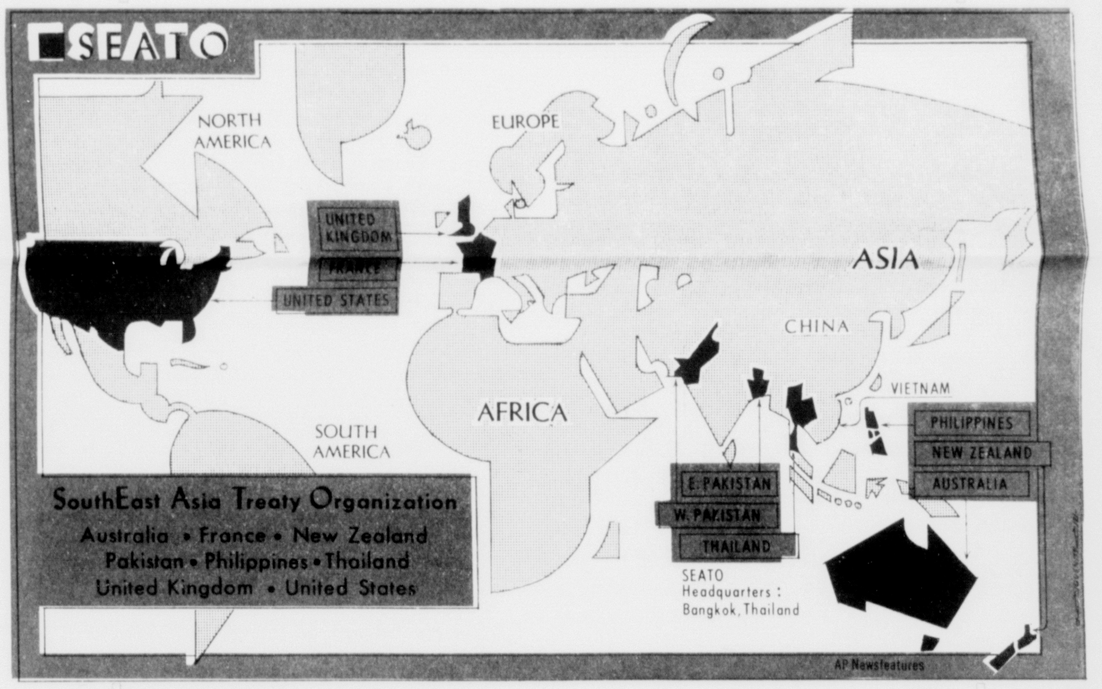

Because the firm that manufactured the hoist had gone bankrupt, a new part had to be specially made and that took considerable time.

Meanwhile, the 44 cars sat in the garage of the Ben Franklin Motor Hotel, gathering dust.

A member of the hotel management staff, Don Loving, said suprisingly, only two failed to start.

Some of the cars bore license plates from states such as Tennessee, Kansas, and Pennsylvania, Loving said.

Among the last autos taken from the garage was Loving's new Valkswagen convertible which he had for only a few weeks when the elevator broke down.

Burger Fits Nixon's Idea of Law and Order Type of Judge

WASHINGTON (AP) — While President Nixon was campaigning for election last year, he promised to appoint a chief justice who believes in "a strict interpretation of the Supreme Court's role."

By his reputation in legal circles, Warren Earl Burger appears to meet Nixon's requirements as a "strict constructionist" of the Constitution. He also appears unlikely to raise objections of Capitol Hill liberals.

Burger, a 61-year-old federal Circuit Court judge here for 13 years, is not the activist that his predecessor, Earl Warren, is. And his presence on the high court may make a difference in interpreting the rights of criminal suspects and defendants. Some recent cases have been decided by only a 5-4 vote.

Burger should have no difficulty in accustoming himself to the high court, however, since the Circuit Court has experienced most of the divisions that afflict the nation's highest court except for the problems of federal-state relations and, with a few exceptions, civil rights.

He is considered a liberal on civil rights. His best known decision in this field is his ruling that the Federal Communications Commission must listen to the complaints of Negroes in the Mississippi community served by a radio station whose license was up for renewal.

The White House said in a statement that Burger has urged those seeking his judicial philosophy to "read my opinions and draw your own conclusions."

But it added that Burger's personal philosophy of government is reflected in a 1967 commencement address at Ripon College in Wisconsin.

"Governments exist chiefly to foster the rights and interest of its citizens—to protect their homes and property, their persons and their lives," he said then. "If a government fails in this basic duty it is not redeemed by providing even the most perfect system for the protection of the rights of defendants in the criminal courts."

At another point in his speech, Burger said, "We know that a nation or a community which has no rules and no laws is not a society but an anarchy in which no rights, either individual or collective, can survive."

"Our system of criminal justice, like our entire political structure was based on the idea of striking a fair balance between the needs of society and the rights of the individual," he added.

Burger is a Presbyterian.

House Approves Bill to Let Cities Levy Sales Tax

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A bill authorizing Missouri cities to levy a sales tax of up to 1 per cent and so help solve their financial problems, passed the House today.

The bill went to the Senate on a 119-18 vote. There was almost no discussion as the bill whipped through.

It would let cities of more than 200 population levy a tax on sales equal to either ½ of 1 per cent or a full 1 per cent if the voters approved. The state would collect the local sales tax along with the state sales tax and refund the city portions.

A plan for penitentiary prisoner furloughs was killed earlier on a 60-74 vote.

One opponent, Rep. Earl Horn, D-St. Louis, called it a vacation plan for convicts and said it offered a policy of "commit crime now and pay later at your convenience."

Sponsors insisted it would go far in rehabilitating lawbreakers because it would convince them they had not just been shut away from the rest of the world. It has the strong support of Missouri's directors of corrections, Fred T. Wilkinson, they said.

Another opponent, Rep. Edna Eads, R-Bonne Terre, said "if these people want to stay with their families all they have to do is obey the law in the first place."

The bill would have permitted furloughs of up to 30 days a year for "good risk" prisoners for good reasons— such as funerals of relatives, severe sickness, the delivery of a wife's baby, seeing about a job or reestablishing family ties just before final release.

At least one other state, Mississippi, has operated under such a law successfully for some time, sponsors said.

The House also killed a bill sponsors said would have upgraded the cosmetology trade. The vote was 65-68.

Opponents said it would bar a lot of young women from becoming beauticians and would force others to quit. They said it would end the operation of beauty parlors in the owners' homes.

Sponsors said it would not, that it would only prevent the operation of beauty parlors in rooms that also are used for living purposes.

Wednesday, the sponsor of a beleaguered bill to repeal Missouri's bounty on predatory animals abandoned it. Rep. Tony: 2nd graf m 21.

SEATO Meets Amidst Criticism

By PETER O'LOUGHLIN

BANGKOK (AP) — This week's council meeting of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization takes place amidst a growing tide of criticism leveled against Asia's only regional defense organization, set up in 1954 in Manila as a bulwark against Communist military expansion.

The criticism has come in part from its members, some of whom claim SEATO is a paper tiger that should be reformed, revitalized or abolished altogether.

One of the chief critisms is that SEATO lacks political unity, has no army, no teeth and thus no credibility as a deterrent to Communist expansion.

The Philippine foreign secretary, Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, recently appointed a seven-man advisory council to review the Philippines' position on SEATO.

Reflecting strong Filipino misgivings about the aims of the organization, the committee was asked to determine whether SEATO was fulfilling its role, and if not, to recommend whether it should be abolished or reorganized.

Thailand, probably the strongest SEATO advocate among the eight member nations, also wants the alliance revamped, but not abolished.

"We are not overpleased with it," Thai Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman said recently, "But we do not favor disbanding it until we have something better to replace it."

Thanat suggested there should be a "reorientation of SEATO from a mere military alliance to a more political forum."

He said the need to make SEATO more political than military stemmed from the fact that European members of the alliance, Britain and France, were becoming less and less militarily involved in Asia.

The British military withdrawal from Asia, to be completed by 1971, has further weakened the military aspect of SEATO. Although the British have promised to send troops to the SEATO banner if needed.

Few SEATO members, particularly the Asian ones, think this is likely.

France, a founding member, has boycotted council meetings for the last three years and did not send a delegation this year.

Australia, New Zealand and the United States are heavily committed in Asia and particularly in Vietnam.

But many Asian leaders, despite American assurances to the contrary, believe the U.S. is preparing to withdraw militarily from the Asian mainland once the Vietnam war is over.

This would further rob SEATO of its most powerful, battle-ready member and leave a vast military power vacuum in the area.

Australia and New Zealand, both with permanent bases and army, navy and air force units in Malaysia and Singapore, do not have the military muscle to assume America's role.

For this reason, some Asian leaders, notably in Thailand, South Korea and Nationalist China have been speaking in recent months about an enlarged Asian military alliance, without direct U.S. involvement, but with implicit U.S. support.

This, according to some SEATO sources, is a possible alternative to SEATO.

As it stands, now, SEATO is powerless to intervene militarily anywhere in the region unless asked to. According to SEATO Secretary General Jesus Vargas, SEATO is set up to combat overt or open aggression, particularly by Communist China.

All of SEATO's military planning is premised precisely on the possibility of subversion developing into insurgency and limited war, Vargas said in a recent speech. "The true worth of SEATO's military preparedness has lain mainly in its deterrent value."

But in the 15 years since its formation, SEATO has hardly deterred the Communists one whit. Vietnam has erupted for the second time, the political and military situation in Laos has worsened and Thailand is fighting a serious guerrilla war.

SEATO, however, is not equipped to handle, and its planning barely takes into account, the now traditional Communist methods of infiltration and subversion that torment Laos, Thailand and Vietnam.

Living Costs Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Living costs rose six-tenths of 1 per cent in April to continue the sharpest upward price spiral in more than a decade, the Labor Department reported today.

The increase pushed the government's consumer price index to 126.4, meaning it cost $12.64 last month for the same amount of typical family purchases that cost $10 in the 1957-59 period on which the index is based.

In the past three months, prices have risen at an annual rate of 7.6 per cent, the steepest rise for a comparable period since 1956, said the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Food, housing and medical care costs rose seven-tenths of 1 per cent each, clothing prices went up six-tenths and transportation two-tenths, the bureau said.

Farmer Reject Cotton Transfers

CHARLESTON -- Mississippi County farmers have rejected the right to transfer cotton acreage allotments on their 1969 planting assignments, George Roberts, manager of the county ASC office revealed today.

Roberts said that the farmers voted 200-86 against allowing the re-assignment of their acreages. The protest was larger this year than in 1968 when 186 voted not to transfer and 112 came out for the right to allocate their allotments, office records show.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
INFLATION STILL AHEAD

The U. S. Labor Department's consumer price index for April is scheduled for release in the next few days.

The American housewife and her breadwinner and due for a shock like the one they got last month. It will be a setback for the Nixon administration, too. The consumer price index in March rose at a 9.6 per cent annual rate. Administration sources imply that the rises in April, when announced, will be as jolting.

Special attention will center on the index for food prices. As a savvy financial editor observed during a similar pinch three years ago: "The grocery store, after all, is where most families see a reflection of the cost of living."

Paul W. McCracken, Chairman of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers, on May 7 told the Society of American Business Writers that "ultimately" the administration's deflationary program would take hold. The wait is an agonizing one for low and middle income families.

"Highest cattle prices in 17 years." That's the bold headline in an Iowa paper, and it explains a good deal of what's happening. The authoritative FARM JOURNAL tells cattlemen: "Two dollars to $3 (a hundredweight) higher, with prices mostly steady compared to early spring levels is the way fed cattle markets are trending for the next 90 days."

The U. S. Department of Agriculture said on May 8 that food prices are rising at an even higher rate than estimated in February, though not as much as in 1968. A Department economist reported that retail food prices are now expected to average about 3 per cent above 1968. In February the rise for the year has been estimated at 2.5 per cent at the most.

Consumer demand continues unabated. K. Gilbert Novotny, president of the St. Louis National Stockyards Co., where the price of steers jumped $6 to $33.25 per cwt. told a wire service that people are asking for luxury cuts of meat. Shortages of other luxury foods are pulling up the general price average.

Novotny suggests that housewifes tired of paying high prices should stop buying beef. Scattered buying resistance is reported -- in Cleveland and Baltimore, for example. U. S. NEWS & WORLD REPORT quotes the wife of an art director in the Chicago area: "The rising food prices are frightening. The only answer is to watch the ads carefully and shop comparatively. It is vital to make a list of the necessities and stick to it."

The American housewife is patient and long-suffering, but she is also practical and hard-headed. Rising disposable income so far has damped down resistance to high prices. But meat strikes and food boycotts are a possibility.

A wave of protests over high food prices in October 1966 erupted into mass action. On Oct. 17 of that year up to 10,000 housewives dressed in slacks, jeans, and jumpers, picketed five Denver supermarket chains, chanting, "down with frills, stamps, and gimmicks."

Food prices did go down sharply in the fall of 1966, whatever the reason. Prof. Otto Eckstein of Harvard University observes: "There is a sort of random, uncontrollable element in inflation which makes the record of the last few months seem worse than the underlying situation." Prof. Eckstein says meat and egg prices will go down. They always do, of course -- until they go up again.

YEAR OF THE MAYORS

The election - eve favorite in the voting for mayor of Los Angeles on Tuesday, May 27, is a Negro and former policeman, and in this year of municipal elections, both blacks and policemen have been faring well. He is 52-year-old Councilman Thomas Bradley, retired after 21 years on the L. A. police force. In the primary election, April 1, Bradley got 42 per cent of the vote to 27 per cent for 59-year-old incumbent Mayor Sam Yorty.

Race is a below - the - surface issue in another important mayoralty election in the offing. On June 10, voters in Minneapolis choose between a police department detective, Charles S. Stenvig, a vice president of the International Confederation of Police Associations who has come to city council meetings with a revolver in the belt of his civilian suit, is running on a law - and - order program. His stunning upset in the April 29 primary was attributed to an outpouring of white backlash and anti-tax sentiment.

A host of mayoralty offices are up for grabs in this year's elections, most of them in November. In addition to the above, elections are scheduled in New York, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Atlanta, and Cleveland. In the latter city Carl B. Stokes (D), the nation's first popularly elected mayor in a large city, must face the voters again. In Pittsburgh, Atlanta, and many other big cities, incumbents are turning down another term, claiming the burdens of the mayor's office are just too, too tough.

In early races in this Year of the Mayors, blacks have done, well, even in the South. Howard A. Lee of Chapel Hill, N. C., the son of a Negro sharecropper, on May 6 became the first Negro in modern days to be elected mayor of a predominantly white Southern town. More remarkable, perhaps, was the thumping victory on May 13 in Fayette, Miss., of Charles Evers, brother of the late Medgar Evers.

"That's OK," he admitted, "A girl was my second choice."

SOME IRREVERENT PREDICTIONS

In a recent article in Human Events, Terry Catchpole who is a noted writer and contributing editor to numerous publications takes a look into the future – with his tongue-in-cheek and his fingers crossed.

We quote . . . "testing the winds of change we most resolutely attempt to decipher what the mystical future has in store. Remember that, had you predicted 25 years ago some of the events that have happened in the interim, nobody would have believed you. With this in mind, and with nary a nod in the direction of Jeane Dixon, I unhesitatingly make a few forescasts for the future:

"The wage-price spiral will continue upward, until it is taller than the Empire State building. At this time it will be declared a National Landmark and be removed to Fort Knox for safekeeping.

"Ted Kennedy will run for the presidency of the United States, the only question being whether or not he can wait until 1972. If he cannot, the Constitution will have to be changed so he can run in 1971.

"John-John Kennedy will not run for the U. S. presidency. He will join the Greek army and be promoted to the presidency of Greece.

"During a renovation of the Capitol building, workmen will discover that the debt ceiling is a phony and that the real ceiling collapsed five years ago under the weight of a ton of fool's gold.

"John Lindsay will continue to be a political force -- in his family. That is, unless wife Mary decides to run against him in a family primary.

"Nelson Rockefeller will be re-elected New York governor in 1970, again in 1974, again in 1978, again in 1982 . . . Eventually New Yorkers will discover their governor has been dead for five years and that the government was being run out of Madison Avenue.

"Mao Tse-tung and Chiang Kai-shek will pass away within two days of each other and six billion Chinese will wander around the world working for a leader . . .

"The United States will not recognize Red China. After all, the way it daily changes its complexion, and because so few have ever seen it up close, who could recognize it?

"It will be discovered that the current worldwide 'student revolution' is indeed an international conspiracy, run out of Zurich by an expatriate Lebanese homosexual dwarf who has been angry at colleges in general ever since he received an 'F' in Advance Sanskrit at the University of Beirut.

"Liberals will continue to oppose deployment of defense weapons and other forms of national security; the reason being they enjoy their guilt feelings, and how can you feel good guilt when you're secure?

"The 'War on Poverty' will be revised, re-designed and re-directed in a more realistic approach to the problem. It will also be more correctly renamed 'The War on Wealth.'

"Federal expenditures will continue to mount until fiscal year 1983 when the government's budget will equal the total amount of money in circulation in the United States. The White House will decide to suspend all government services and redistribute all the money available by flinging it from a fleet of helicopters deployed across the nation. The people, however, will decide they want nothing to do with the filthy stuff and hubcaps will become the new monetary unit.

"Fighting will continue in Southeast Asia, not because of U. S. involvement or Communist aggression, but because Asians love to fight.

"As a further precaution against Soviet Attack, the U. S. government will erect a high tariff barrier composed of cotton and steel. Soviet warheads will thus be easily repulsed and there will be a big boom in Canadian real estate.

"U. S. policy toward Europe will continue to be based on the same principle as it has in the past: extreme flexibility. NATO will eventually be transformed into a military retirement home and the Common Market will have to start giving away trading stamps to attract customers."

Maybe you have a few forecasts you'd like to add to these, but we've had enough for the day.

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — Oh, to be in Gotham, now that spring is here.

Browning never wrote it that way, but then Browning never saw a miniskirt. And the miniskirt capital of the world is located, according to some competent critics, in Manhattan.

Testing that proposition, I made inquiry the other day of a new arrival from Iowa.

"Do the girls dress like that in Des Moines?" I asked.

"Gosh no," said he.

There was a time last winter when I feared for the miniskirt trend.

The gals seemed to be swapping short skirts for long pants at an alarming rate. But now the onset of fine weather indicates they merely were protecting themselves from the cold blasts of winter rather than from the hot stares of girl watchers.

With spring dresses abloom, you would think the watchers would be out in force. I suppose they are, but not hereabouts in the sense of standing on the corner and watching the pretty girls go by. You stand on the corner of Fifth Avenue and 51st Street, say, and you're likely to find yourself trampled underfoot by mostly female phalanxes. The sidewalk traffic, as well as the auto traffic, is simply awe inspiring.

Pursuing my editorial investigations, I asked one of the stenographers in the office what she thought of the mini trend.

"It really is something," she conceded. "Going through some stores last weekend I was shocked by the clothes on the manikins. The skirts were up to here."

She indicated an interesting anatomical bench mark, considerably above the reach of her own mini.

Being conscientious about surveys, I asked a young man too.

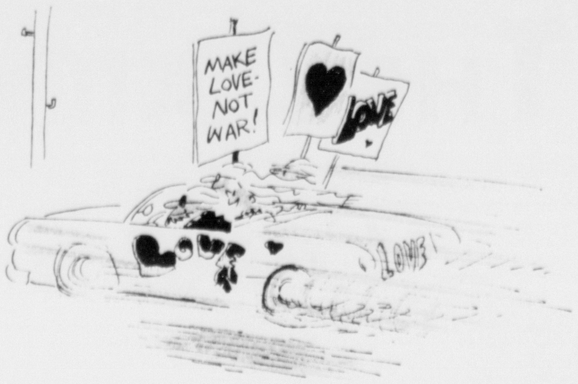

"The styles are fine by me," he said. If he was shocked, he did a good job of keeping his emotions under control.

Another youth elaborated, "You get calloused to seeing those legs, but I don't think you ever get over being surprised."

One surprise I've had to put up with lately is the appearance of sleek, dark, seamless nylon hose that extends clear out of sight and spotlights a well turned leg in a fashion never achieved by contoured stockings, knee length socks or bare skin. I cannot say, however, that this shocks me.

Of course it's us old codgers who are most immune to minishocks— for reasons other than you might suppose.

We're the ones who well remember those girls of the flaming youth generation who wore skirts not too much longer than the ones they're wearing now. And that, mind you, was before the invention of pantyhose.

"Now they won't be able to do either."

FROZEN. Because the U.S. Supreme Court let a lower court order stand, the Treasury Department estimates it will lose more than $50 million in excise taxes on truck refrigeration equipment in the period 1963-1972. Treasury claims freezing units in trucks hauling frozen food are accessories of the vehicles, hence subject to a 10% manufacturer's Federal excise tax. Challenging this ruling, one company said the refrigeration units were not accessories; therefore no tax is due. The lower court ordered a refund of $2.5 million the concern paid in taxes between 1959 and 1962, holding that the tax on accessories didn't apply to refrigeration units.

A THOUSAND SUCCESSFUL MEN

Someone has made a survey of a thousand successful men to learn how they got their start in life. These men are not mere money-makers, but they are men who have made the world better by their achievements in science, architecture, engineering, education, art, and so on. It is interesting to note the beginnings of their life work.

Three hundred started as farmers' sons. Two hundred started as messenger boys. Two hundred were newsboys. One hundred were printers' apprentices. One hundred were manufacturers' apprentices. Fifty began at the bottom of railroad work. Fifty -- only fifty had wealthy parents to give them a start.

A lazy boy did not discover the telephone. A lazy boy did not learn how to control steam, nor invent the stateam boiler. A lazy boy did not discover the power of gasoline, nor learn how to harness the falls of Niagara. No. The men who have accomplished most in the world have been men who worked hard and long before they achieved success.

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson say: Strom Thurmond and Young bride having spats; eager Junketeers skip congressional hearing on coal dust; fly to England to get information available here

WASHINGTON--Apparently the honeymoon is over for Sen. Strom Thurmond, spry 66, and his bride Nancy, a shapely 22.

Old Strom sternly lectured Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas on the Senate floor in 1966 for marrying a girl in her 20s. Not long after, the South Carolina Senator began holding hands with Nancy Moore, who had been Miss South Carolina of 1966.

They were married just before Christmas at a private ceremony that was staged in Aiken, S.C., with all the Secrecy of one of Strom's military operations. A major general in the army reserves, he used to command the army reserve unit on Capitol hill.

The couple settled blissfully in harbour square, a plush apartment complex,where Hubert Humphrey also lives. There was only one hitch: Strom's new mother-in-law, Mrs. Paul Moore, moved in with them during the honeymoon and stayed for weeks.

On at least one occasion, the Senator and Mrs. Moore drove off to the Capitol together, leaving the young bride behind. As the car took off, Sen. Thurmond turned to his wife and instructed her in a fatherly tone: "Now you go back upstairs and finish your cereal."

The other morning Strom and "Moose," as the new Mrs. Thurmond is known to friends, were quarreling when they emerged from their apartment. The argument became more heated as they prepared to drive to Capitol Hill. Suddenly, the Senator from South Carolina barged out of the car, slammed the door and abandoned his bride in the exit lane.

He approached the next car in line and demanded: "Are you going to Capitol Hill?"

The driver shook his head negatively but said he would be glad to take a detour to accomodate the Senator.

"Never Mind," grumped Thurmond, "I'll find someone else," and he continued down the line of cars looking for a ride.

Note: Sen. Thurmond and Justice Douglas, who stand at opposite ends of the political spectrum, have much in common when it comes to women. Not only did both choose wives young enough to be their granddaughters, but both previously married women less than half their age. When Strom was the 44-year-old Governor of the State he married another Miss South Carolina, 21-year-old Jean Crouch.

Both Thurmond and Douglas are also physical fitness buffs who keep in athletic trim for their young wives. Douglas likes the outdoor life--hiking, camping, mountain climbing. Thurmond does push-ups, hoists a barbell high over his bald head and, to improve his circulation, stands on his head.

--Traveling Congressmen--

A party of congressmen flew off to England and Wales the other day to gather information that they could have obtained by attending one of their own hearings.

Their pretext for the trip was to find out what the British and Welsh are doing about coal dust. Yet five of the seven junketeers weren't interested enough in coal dust to attend a hearing on the subject on the eve of their junket.

They could have learned all they wanted to know about the coal dust problem in British-Welsh mines by walking down the corridor to their hearing room. Jethro Gough, perhaps the foremost expert on coal dust in the British Isles, was available to answer questions.

As head of the Welsh National school of medicine, Gough has performed 20,000 autopsies on coal miners to discover what coal dust does to their lungs. He testified that coal dust could be fatal to miners who inhaled enough of it. He had seen cases of miners dying from black lung as early s age 44.

Only Rep. John Dent of Pennsylvania, Rep. Patsy Mink of Hawaii, both Democrats, and Rep. John Erlenborn of Illinois, a Republican, bothered to attend the hearings. But when Dent proposed a junket to the British Isles to study coal dust, five Congressmen who wouldn't walk down the corridor were eager to fly across the Atlantic to investigate the problem.

They were Reps. Roman Pucinski of Illinois, Augustus Hawkins of California, Louis Stokes of Ohio, and Bill Clay of Missouri, all Democrats, also Earl Landgrebe of Indiana, and Orval Hansen of Idaho, both Republicans, Dent and Erlenborn, though already steeped in coal dust lore, also made the trip. Only Patsy Mink saw no need to travel all the way to Europe for information about coal dust.

In fairness, Stokes has demonstrated intense interest in the coal dust problem. He personally inspected several Pennsylvania mines and later joined in sponsoring a tough bill to protect miners from Black lung.

--Other Sources Vailable--

If the Congressmen simply wanted to take a trip, they ould have saved the taxpayers a lot of money by flying up to Pittsburgh earlier this month for the American mining Congress's annual coal convention. It was attended by several British coal experts, including George W. Sanders of Britain's national coal board, who would have been willing to tell the Congressmen all about coal dust in the British isles.

For that matter, the Congressmen could merely have sent a messenger to the Bureau of mines in downtown Washington to pick up detailed reports on what England and Wales are doing about coal dust. The Bureau of mines has already spent a considerable amount of the taxpayers' money to send expeditions into the British coal dust country. The first trip produced all the information that either Congress or the Bureau should need about their coal dust problem.

A four-man government team made this trip last October--Frank C. Memmott and Earle P. Shoub, mining experts from the Bureau of Mines; Also Dr. Marcus Key and Dr. W.D.C. Morgan, medical experts from the public health service. Their 35-page report entitled "Trip Report: England and Wales," should have been adequate to make Washington fully informed on coal dust in those countries.

However, another Government mining expert, Henry Doyle, insisted upon seeing the problem for himself and wangled a trip to Britain in February to study coal dust. Now he has gone back again, accompanying the Congressmen, as their coal dust adviser.

THE STUPID GOAT

A commuting writer for The News-Sun, Kendallville, Indiana, writes of what he sees along the road to and from work: ". . we've noticed a white angora billy goat with his head through the fence beside the road. He seems to be waiting patiently for help to extricate him because his horns turn back and he's caught like a fish in a gill net. He must really relish that lush grass just beyond the fence and he seems to be confident that someone will help him out. The episode struck us as being so parallel to the situation of we Americans today . . . We (so) love that lushness just beyond what comes by the sweat of our brows that we've been tempted beyond our freedom and we lose it until the man comes along to help us out . . . .What would happen if that farmer got tired of loosening the stupid goat, or got sick, or involved elsewhere?"

When we expect government to solve all our problems for us and guarantee our security from the cradle to the grave, we are indeed acting like the stupid goat.

Two Trains of Thought

A YOUNG MISS HAD suffered enough during the hot day and decided to go to a secluded mill pond for a quick dip to cool off.

While she was enjoying her cool dip a littleboy came along and tied knots in her clothes. When she came out and found the problem she hunted for some type of cover. She was happy to uncover an old washtub which she held up in front of her and took out after the little boy.

"You, little brat, do you know what I'm thinking?"

"Sure,' replied the little monster, "you're thinking that tub has a bottom in it."

H.L. Hunt Says

ANOTHER UNREALISTIC RULING

The Supreme Court has gone into the "one man, one vote" concept in setting the boundaries of congressional districts and again has departed from reality in its decision. This time a divided court struck down congressional district plans in New York and Missouri.

The Missouri case shows how far the court majority has gone in requiring the impossible. That state has 10 congressional districts. The "ideal" population per district would be 431,981. In 1967 the Missouri legislature properly had taken into account such factors as the location of a university and a large military base.

But the court said this was not satisfactory. The majority ruled that unless a state can justify "any" numerical variance between districts, "no matter how small," the plan is unconstitutional.

Justice White, voting with the minority, commented that when the court finds a three per cent variation not to be constituionally permissible "it is losing perspective and sticking at a trifle." And he added that "to inject the courts into these minor squabbles is an unacceptable pre-emption of the legislative function."

That seems to be putting it mildly. This latest ruling gives strength to the rising demand for a constitutional convention, called by Congress in response to state petitions, to rewrite the rules regarding the function of the Supreme Court. Many state legislatures already have approved petitions to call such a convention. HLH

Mafia's New Horse:
Anti-Kickback Law Begins Plugging UP Mob's Multimillion-Dollar Drain of Pension Funds

New York--From time to time, in crime-packed cities across the land, we of the anti-Mafia mafia gather with industrialists behind closeed doors and hit the businessmen with a crash course on fighting off the crime syndicates' invasion of legitimate business and unions.

Until now, none of us "instructors" has used a Trojan Horse model as a prop. That's unfortunately bad pedagogy on our part.

Unless you use the shock treatment, some executives simply don't realize hos easily their businesses and trade associations are infiltrated.

One of the conversation pieces at the sessions of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency anti-Mafia workshop here the other day was the story of the Matter Truckmen of America, Inc., of this Cosa Nostra-crammed city.

No one quite knows how it happened, but last year it was discovered that the association, biggest of its kind in the world, had named as its managing director a well-connected chap called Sam Berger, friend of Jimmy Hoffa and at least one deadly Mafia extortioner, ex-convict and power in the crime combine of the late Tommy (Three Fingers Brown) Luchese, Johnny Dio.

To add injury to insult, Mr. Berger had been indicted on charges of offering bribes and kickbacks to officials of the Teamsters Central States, Southeast and Southwest Pension Fund to obtain loans for a Cleveland manufacturer.

Well, last weekend Mr. Berger was convicted of conspiring to pay and receive kickbacks to get these mortgage loans worth more than $2 million.

Perhaps this will shake some of Mr. Berger's clients. Perhaps it might even impress some of America's most prominent entertainers for whom the enterprising Mr. Berger doubles as a theatrical booking agent. Perhaps it might affect some of the fund raisers who always give him a place of prominence at their testimonial dinners in exchange for vaudeville "talent" and, of course, the bloc sales of tickets to independent unions which are a throwback to days of gore.

But what is most impressive -- and adds a touch of heady encouragement to the instructors of this anticrime teach-in -- is the fact that the conviction of Sam Berger and some of his colleagues is the first such conviction under Title 18, U.S. Code Section 1954 - otherwise known as the anti-kickback statute.

Once more this is a fabulous victory for the Justice Dept.'s Southern District of New York, in general, and the prosecutor, Paul Rooney, in particular.

In these times of $190 billion budgets, it is difficult to excite the younger generation with talk of merely millions of dollars. But some of us middle-aged still believe that the implementing of an anti-kickback law which can stop the mob's looting of union pension funds by the millions of dollars is exceedingly impressive and exciting.

Federal sources in Washington estimate that some 8 to 10 per cent of some pension fund loans are defaulted. This has been going on for years.

The loss for all funds runs into the scores of millions. Some of this money has been lent to gambling casinos, developers of underwater real estate, and promoters of housing schemes on property which couldn't support a thatched hut. "In all," says one Justice Dept. official, "the mob and loan finders may well have cost the pension funds some $100 million over the years. True, that's a mighty small percentage of some $30 million in such funds, and it certainly is true that thousands of such funds are scrupulously honest, but the money does pour out."

One U.S. Attorney has estimated that at least $50 million of the Teamsters $500 million fund has been recklessly lent and invested.

"It's happened all over a lot from New York to Miami and points west," said he. "It will take years to unravel what has happened to money intended to cover the old age of teamsters and some other unionists. We're especially aghast at what has happened in the smaller, virtually unknown independent unions which amass as much as $15 million in funds and then juggle some of it into their general treasury. We're looking into two of those now."

Meanwhile back at the Master Truckmen of America, Inc., there is chagrin. They wonder how it happenened to their director. They should have checked. They would have found that he is an intimate of men who, like Johnny Dio, long have been linked with the Mafia.

We of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency urge trade associations all over the land to work together, set up their own intelligence system, exchange information -- and get a model of a Trogan Horse set up on the home office desk to remind officials how easily they can be infiltrated.

Ann Landers

V.D. Has Reached Epidemic Stage

Dear Ann Landers: Every time I pick up a magazine I see an article entitled "Should You Tell Your Daughter About the Pill?" I am not criticizing these articles, some of them are excellent, but what we really need is an article called, "Should I Tell My Daughter About Gonorrhea?"

What most people don't seem to know is that V.D. has reached epidemic proportions in this country. Although medical science has developed antibiotics which can cure both gonorrhea and syphillis, young people are contracting these crippling diseases and infecting one another at an alarming rate.

A great many teen-agers read your column. Please, Ann Landers, do these kids a favor and tell them where to go and what to do if they suspect they have V.D. — Gravely Concerned Parent

Dear Parent: I urge every teen-ager who suspects he has V.D. to go to the City or County Health Department and ask to be examined and treated it necessary. V.D. is a crippler and a killer. It will not disappear without treatment. Most City and County Health departments will treat teen-agers without charge and keep the visits confidential (bless them), even though the law says minors cannot be treated without parental consent.

In my book, "Ann Landers Talks to Teen-Agers About Sex" I deal frankly with V.D. The book is now in paper back and all proceeds go to Retarded Children. It 's worth 50 cents.

Dear Ann Landers: I simply had to write and tell you how much my husband and I enjoyed your answer to that smart-alect Yale student. He wrote you that phony letter about the dope addict who fell in love with the necropheliac. (All she wanted to do was make love in the cemetery.) We laughed until we were sick.

I guess one of the reaons we appreciated your put-down is because my husband's younger brother graduated from Harvard and is now at Yale Law School. He is bright, there's no denying it, but his running commentary on the glories of Harvard were more than we could bear. Now that he's at Yale we keep getting this static about the magic combination of the two top schools in the world — bla bla bla bla bla. It's Yawnsville.

My husband is in Law School at the University of Puerto Rico which suits us fine. Occasionally his Harvard-Yale brother will make some snide remark to let us know he doesn't think much of the U. of P.R. We clipped your column out of the San Juan Star and sent it to him just in case he missed it in the New Haven Register. Keep at it, Ann. We love you. — D. and L.

Dear D. and L.: And I love Puerto Rico, and the San Juan Star and the New Haven Register -- also the Boston-Herald-Traveler. Thanks for writing!

Drinking may be "in" to the kids you run with -- but it can put you"out " for keeps. You can cool it and stay popular. Read "Booze and You — For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Hamlet Goes West

BARLOW'S KINGDOM. By John Redgate. Trident. $4.50.

In keeping with the fact that this is a Western (but not the usual cliche about the white-hatted good guys and the black-hatted bad guys), Redgate has written the whole narrative in a taut, terse, tight-lipped style.

The time and place — a Montana ranch just after the Civil War. Roy Barlow, who had been wounded in that conflict, returns home, wondering why his father Simon — the "king" of the whole frontier domain — had been killed in an "accident" of suspicious nature. There also was the fact that his mother had been married, almost immediately, to Simon's brother Kermit.

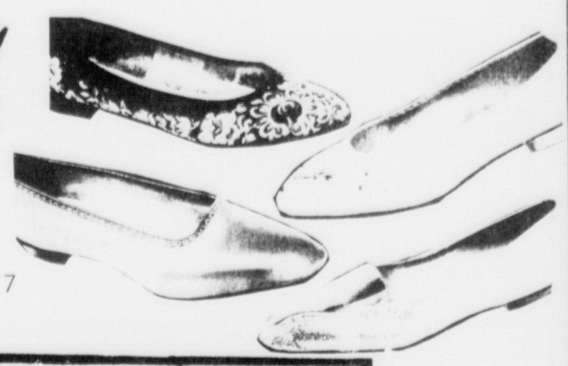

Roy also has come home to Kate, the girl who has waited five years while he was off to the wars. But his main attention is devoted to the mystery of his father's death, and while he does a bit of snooping around, he has a miraculous escape from being executed.

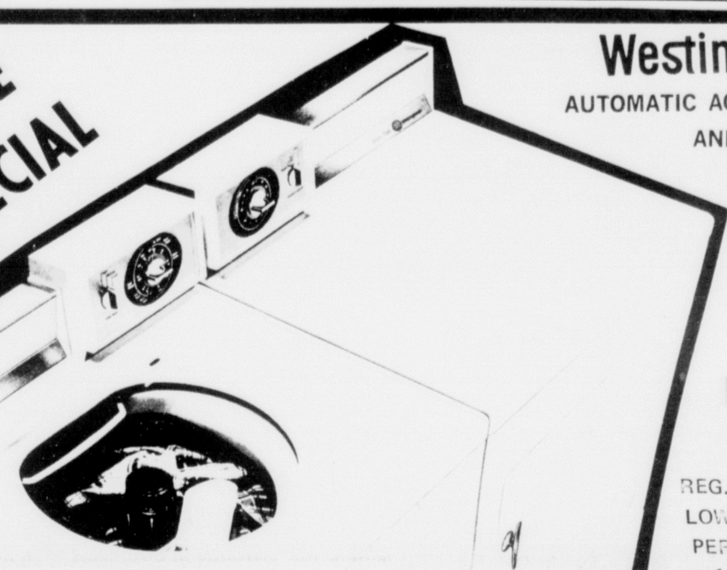

Then, in the final pages of the story, comes the big showdown, a flurry of flying lead in which vengeance is doubled and redoubled and blood flows all over the place.

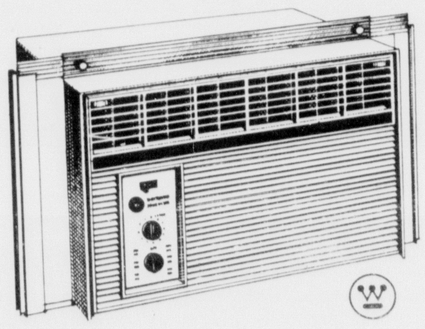

It is an old-fashioned melldrammer, and when it is made into a movie there probably will be some more complaints about the amount of violence shown on the screen these days. The only thing that lifts it above the level of pulp fiction is that the author's clipped, driving, forceful prose has a certain fascination.

Royals' Owner Has Idea

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Ewing Kauffman, owner of the fledgling Kansas City Royals, wants to win an American League pennant within five years and he has a unique plan he says might provide the baseball players to do it.

What is needed is a new and untapped source of talent, he told Joe McGuff, sports editor of the Kansas City Star in an interview. And he detailed his ideas about how to find the talent.

He would set up tryouts camps all over the country to find the 24 best athletes who have not played baseball. Only over -all athletic and mental skills would be considered in choosing these 17 or 18 - year - old exceptional boys.

"If a boy has outstanding athletic ability and receives intensive instruction, I see no reason that he can't develop baseball skills," Kauffman said.

He said he hopes to have enough information to make a final decision by September whether to go ahead with the project which he estimates would cost $500,000 the first year.

"My thinking is to go into all the major cities in the country and set up tryout camps," Kauffman said. "I realize that the outstanding baseball player will be known to other organizations and will be taken in the free agent draft.

"He must be 17 or 18 and a high school graduate. This program is not designed for the college graduate. He would be too old by the time we finished developing him ... We will check these boys for speed, dexterity and depth perception. Tests also will be set up to check their mental ability.

"Not an I.Q. test. What we would need is to evaluate their ability to reason and the speed with which they reach conclusions...

"I think there are a lot of boys in slum areas with outstanding athletic ability who never get a chance to express it.

"My thought would be to sign these boys to a contract and pay them a monthly salary. We would set up a training camp in Florida. They would live there free ... the year round.

"Boys who have played baseball from nine to 16 years will have got less total practice than our boys would in 11½ months. This type of instruction would be provided for not one but two years.

"After that a boy would be ready to go out and play. If some boys show exceptional ability, we might let them play earlier in one of the rookie leagues."

"There are still a lot of things to be worked out before we make a final decision," Kauffman concluded, "but I think the idea has merit. I'd like to win a pennant in five years and I think this plan will help."

For a man whose baseball team has been in existence less than a year, this may sound like an impossible dream.

But, wrote McGuff, "it is the sort of challenge that appeals to a man who started a 156- million - dollar pharmaceutical business in the basement of his home."

Boating Tips...

SUPPORTING A BOAT

When a boat is in the water the hull is supported over the entire bottom surface by an even pressure, but on a trailer, the weight is concentrated in a few areas. The trailer you choose for your boat is one of the most important items in your outboard rig, say the boating authorities at Mercury outboards. Boaters should understand what type of support can be used and how best it can be utilized, as even the best trailer cannot give the overall support found when the boat is in the water. Outboarders should familiarize themselves with the many models on the market to find which is best for their particular boat. A too short or too long trailer or one that does not provide ample support in the right places can cause serious damage to the hull.

Mays' Blast Fatal To Cards

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Willie Mays appeared nervous in the batters' box. It was understandable, however, because the slugging Giants' center fielder was facing the Cardinals' Gary Waslewski for the first time.

The lanky St. Louis right-hander, obtained from Boston in a winter swap, delivered and Mays smashed his 592nd career homer, a two-run eighth-inning blast that boosted San Francisco to a 4-3 victory over the Cardinals Wednesday.

"I saw Waslewski pitch in the World Series two years ago," recalled Mays. "But he was new to me. It's kind of hard to figure what a guy will throw when you haven't faced him before.

"I just tried to hit the ball hard and it worked out all right," said Mays of his gamewinning blow, a 410-foot drive that made Curt Flood climb the center field fence in pursuit. It was Mays' fifth homer of the season.

Right-hander Gaylord Perry, competing his eighth game in nine starts, scattered eight hits. His record now is 7-3, his best start in the majors.

Perry survived Jim Hicks' ninth-inning homer.

"I'm not pitching any better than in the past, but the team is scoring more runs for me," Perry explained. "This was a pressure game. You have to keep alert because one pitch can cost you.

"It was a big game for us," the pitcher continued. "I hope it gets us going. We're just not playing the way we're capable."

Willie McCovey's lead-off double and Dick Dietz's two-out single gave Perry a 1-0 lead in the second inning.

Tim McCarver's homer earned a tie in the fourth, but Cards' starter Nelson Briles fell behind in the fifth.

Dietz opened with a walk, was sacrificed to second and scored on Perry's single up the middle as Flood's throw sailed over McCarver's head at the plate.

Hicks' walk and pinch hitter Joe Hague's two-out bloop double to left made it 2-2 in the seventh.

Mays stroked his homer after Ron Hunt singled off Waslewski's glove with one down in the eighth.

Continental Homes to Open New Malden Plant May 29

MALDEN -- A new $600,000 manufacturing plant at the Malden Industrial Park will begin operation Thursday, May 29.

Special ceremonies beginning at 2 p.m., will mark the official start of production for Missouri-Continental Homes, Inc., a manufacturer of sectionalized homes and small commercial buildings.

Lt. Gov. William Morris will be the featured speaker. Following the ribbon-cutting, an open house and tour of the plant will be held. The event is open to the public.

Present for the occasion in addition to Lt. Gov. Morris will be Marvin E. Mitchell, president of The Weil-McLain Company; Ralph C. Lester, board chairman of Continental Homes; O. Z. Oliver, president of Continental Homes; Jack Stapleton, Sr., chairman of the Missouri State Highway Commission; Henry Maddox, director of the State Commerce and Industrial Development Commission; Ray Jefferies and Harold Thomas of the State C.I.D.; City of Malden officials; Malden Airport Board; and other state and county officials.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, Mayor R. J. Dicks and J. D. Byrum, president of the Malden Chamber of Commerce, made a joint announcement on Oct. 31, 1968, that Continental Homes a Virginia corporation, would expand into Missouri with a new plant to locate in Malden.

On Nov. 29 Malden voters overwhelmingly approved a $300,000 industrial bond issue to underwrite the construction of a 78,000 square foot building to house the new manufacturing firm. Construction was started in February.

Robert Fitts, vice president and general manager of the Malden firm, said that his company willhave an additional $300,000 invested in the building in fixtures, equipment and materials.

Continental Homes, a subsidiary of The Weil-McLain Company, Inc., of Michigan City, Ind., is a producer of sectionalized homes, classrooms, apartment buildings, churches, banks and other small commercial type buildings.

Continental began operation in 1955 in Boones Mill, Va. It has grown at a rapid pace since that time with their sales increasing over the year. They have six plants in the state of Virginia serving parts of 14 states. The Malden plant will be number seven and will serve parts of nine state.

Actual production at the Malden plant was already started. Fitts says that six houses are now in production and that the first home will roll off the assembly line on May 29.

"We have 50 employees at the present and expect to have 150 by the end of a year's operation." he said. The employees are all local people within the Malden area.

Fitts said that Continental will be in production 12 months out of the year. "We can build houses under ideal working conditions the year around in Malden and this is what we plan to do," he said.

A major factor in Continental's selection of Missouri as an expansion site was the state's central location for national distribution. Malden was chosen because local city officials and citizens were willing to provide the necessary facilities.

Today's Health Tip

from DAVID SHY Rph

If you have a habit of saving half of an antibiotic prescription for the next time you get sick; don't do it. Be sure to take all the capsules. Most antibiotics used today do not "kill" the bug, but only depress its growth pattern allowing to die because of an interception in some metabolic process. You must continue to take the antibiotic long enough, or a regrowth will occur in later weeks.

A "SHOWBOAT" family portrait. Magnolia (Carole Sue Clayton), Kim (Judy Clayton), and Gaylord Ravenal, (Dr. Jean R. Dupont) pose on the top deck of Sikeston Little Theatres "Showboat", the "Cotton Blossom."

'Showboat' Opens With Cast of 60

A cast of 60 will present "Show Boat", Sikeston Little Theatre's last production of the season, tonight through Saturday night. Show time begins at 8 each evening at the Middle school auditorium.

The Hammerstein - Kern musical is based on life on the Mississippi in the period of 1890-1927. Musical selections in the score include "Only Make Believe", "Ol Man River", "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man", "You Are Love", "Bill", and many more.

Mrs. Carole Clayton will portray Magnolia Hawkes Ravenal, wife of the riverboat gambler.

Patsy Mitchell will play Julia LaVerne, leading lady of the 'Show Boat". Two of the songs she will be singing are "Can't Help Livin' Dat Mann" and 'Bill".

Dr. Jean Dupont will make his debut in the leading role of Gaylord Ravenal, riverboat gambler. Although a newcomer to Sikeston and the Little Theatre, he has written several reviews and shows while in college. Originally from Copenhagen, Denmark, and more recently from Houston, Texas, he is a surgeon with Ferguson Medical Group.

Judy Clayton, ten-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. 'Buddy" Clayton, performs the only juvenile role in the production. Her real mother, Carole Clayton, will also fill the stage role of her mother. Judy portrays the role of Kim Ravenal.

The role of Stephen Baker, Julia LaVerne's husband, is the first leading role for Paul Parmenter, a veteran performer. A senior at Southeast Missouri State College, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Parmenter.

Associate memberships will be available at the door at each performance.

The University of Missouri - Rolla offers several credit courses at Fort Leonard Wood.

Burger Receives Warm Response From Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nomination of Warren E. Burger to be chief justice has drawn a warm response in the Senate, particularly from conservatives, indicating the veteran federal judge will have little trouble winning confirmation.

Within an hour after President Nixon's Wednesday night disclosure of his choice, Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., announced his Senate Judiciary Committee will hold hearings on Burger's nomination the first week in June.

"He is an outstanding jurist and a very fine man," declared Eastland, a persistent critic of what he terms liberal Supreme Court decisions under retiring Chief Justice Earl Warren.

Although the conservatives were the most enthusiastic, many liberals also said they approved of Burger, who is considered a generally tougher advocate of law and order measures than the majority of the current Supreme Court.

Burger has served 13 years as a judge of the federal Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

Sens. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., and Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va. - all Judiciary Committee members who opposed Abe Fortas for chief justice last year - joined Eastland in hailing the appointment.

The committee's No. 2 Republican, Roman L. Hruska of Nebraska, was enthusaiastic in his applause for the nomination.

"I am sure," said Hruska, "the Senate will give quick and enthusiastic confirmation . . . He has demonstrated many fine attainments, one of which will have an especially wide appeal, and that is his consistent support of law and order."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said the 61-year-old Burger would "make a good chief justice," adding he thinks the judge "will cut the Supreme Court's annual three-month holiday down to one month."

Gideon Man Held On Check Charge

MALDEN - A 21-year-old Malden - Gideon area man was arrested Monday for passing checks on a local bank without having funds on deposit at the bank.

Walter Jack Owens Jr., was arrested about 2:30 p.m. Monday by Chief of Police Bobby Dockins and Officer Jack Moore for allegedly passing a check on the First National Bank for $15 on May 16, and attempting to pass another for $20 on May 19 at the same store.

Owens arrest has been turned over to the office of the Dunklin County Prosecuting Attorney for filing, according to local authorities.

IT PAYED TO FIDDLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Another 20 per cent profit has been returned to investors in the hit Broadway musical, "Fiddler on the Roof." Investors have received a total 695 per cent profits on their $375,000 investment. A total of $5,212,500 has been shared equally by investors and producer Harold Prince.

Policeman Named as Rapist

ST. LOUIS (AP) - A police officer was charged with forcible rape Wednesday after four women identified him as their assailant, police said.

Several other rape victims said the officer, Patrolman Milton Brookins Jr., 25, closely resembled the man who assaulted them, police added.

One of the victims who identified Brookins as her assailant told officers the man who invaded her home wrote a note in her presence, taunting police and boasting of his act.

Investigators said boastful and taunting notes have been written by a man involved in a series of assaults in the west end area of the city since Feb. 10. The notes were signed by the "phantom rapist."

Brookins was arrested Tuesday night, shortly after he got off duty at 11 p.m. Authorities said the policeman, who is married and has a child, refused to make a statement.

In addition to the two rape charges, Brookins also was charged with stealing over $50.

Police officials said the car Brookins was driving at the time of his arrest had been rented from an agency in December and never returned.

Home Ownership—
Foundation of the Nation
REALTOR® A professional in real estate who subscribes to a strict code of ethics as a member of the local and state boards and of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Q. Since the seller pays the commission, does the buyer have any obligation to the Realtor?
A. Usually, there is no legal obligation until some sort of agreement has been reached and put in writing. However, the buyer does have obligations of good manners. For example, the Realtor is a business man, and his time is money. While he will be happy to spend as much time with you as necessary to find the right home for you, when you have made an appointment with a Realtor, you should be prompt in keeping it, or, if you cannot, you should cancel as soon as possible.

Q. Logic tells me there are many reasons why I should arrange for a Realtor to sell my house, since obviously the real estate field is growing. But I can't figure out why I shouldn't sell my house myself and save the commission.
A. You are right. Logically, you should list your home with a Realtor. Here are only a few major reasons. The Realtor's stock in trade is houses, and he serves a constant flow of people -interested in buying -- really- potential customers. The Realtor can screen all those who express interest in house. Many people want only to look, others cannot afford the particular house you have for sale. If you try to sell by yourself, you have no advance "qualifying" of the prospect. You will usually feel constrained to admit to your home anyone expressing an interest, no matter what the hour and without any way of evaluating the motives. In the current market, moreover, the biggest advantage in listing with a Realtor is his guidance in helping set a realistic market price and in advising where mortgage money is available for the would - be purchaser -- knowledge the "do - it - yourself" seller rarely has.

Heckemeyer Ends Bid to Kill Bounties

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The sponsor of a beleaguered bill to repeal Missouri's bounty on predatory animals gave up Wednesday and abandoned his measure.

Rep. Tony Heckemeyer, D-Sikeston, said if House members had just let him present the facts in the case the bill would be passed overwhelmingly.

Members amended his bill after hours of argument so bounties could only be paid on coyotes. Bounties on wildcats, ground squirrels, moles and gophers would be wiped out.

The bill has moved slowly since its introduction in January but finally the House got around to debating it May 14. There were efforts to amend it sharply, even put it so far back on the legislative shelf it would take 110 members to dust it off and consider it once more.

The 97-34 vote convinced Heckemeyer to strike the bill from the calendar. House members responded with appropriate - but badly rendered wolf calls.

Some members no doubt remember the testimony of one irate farmer who was critical of the State Conservation Department's efforts to train farmers to trap bothersome wolves.

The farmer told a committee considering the bill about two weeks ago he had received a trap from the department but the only things he caught were his neighbor's dog and cat.

Mrs. J.H. Galeener entertained at Five Hundred Monday afternoon at her home on North Kingshighway. Mrs. H.C. Blanton and Miss Ora Lennox won the favors, which were pieces of flat silver.

The Standard has under way the Year Book for the Will Mayfield College of Marble Hill, Mo. It will contain many excellent photos of faculty, pupils, scenes, etc., and should add to the standing of that, already noted, educational institution. The book will contain 100 pages of matter, be printed on heavy enamel paper, tied with the colors of the college. It is expected to be in the hands of the patrons by the 15th of June.

Mr. and Mrs. W.H. Tanner and two children accompanied by Angie Austin, left Tuesday afternoon to spend the summer at the Tanner home on Manhattan Beach. Miss Eva Hess will follow them in two weeks, for an extensive visit and Miss Mildred Davis will also visit there during the summer months.

Miss Irene Hollister's Sunday School class gave a supper in Malone Park, Tuesday evening, in honor of Aline and Dorothy O'Kelley and Opal Askew, members of the class, who are leaving town.

The original Phil Baxter and his ten rough riding Texas Tommies will charge into Sikeston for a dance engagement at the Fairgrounds pavilion Monday night, for the only dance presentation in Southeast Missouri. The promoters, Ernest Harper, Denny Murphy, Byron Bowman, C.L. Blanton, jr., and Brown Jewell, have agreed upon a gate admission charge of 50 cents each and an additional charge of $2 per couple for dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Woodney of this city are parents of a baby girl born early Wednesday morning at the hospital.

Dr. G.W. Presnell is still to be found on duty, the victim of a "sympathetic" limp not withstanding. According to his secretary, Miss Dorothy Walker, the Doctor attended the ball game Sunday and injured his ankle by violently jumping up and down while rooting for the locals. The limp became more pronounced as sympathetic observers commented upon the fact.

J.D. Bruce, 11 years old, in his language, "has had every thing about himself broke, but his neck and I guess that's next." J.D. was jumping the hedge at the Mag Tanner residence last Monday night with the aid of a stick when his foot became caught and he stumbled and fell breaking his right arm. The injured member was set by Dr. T.C. McClure. Thus far, he says, I've had my left collar bone broken three times, my right one once, my leg once, left arm once, and now my right arm is in a sling. Guess my neck is next.

If You Were the Judge

Preacher Falls in Grave

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

The Rev. Goodman, presiding at a cemetery burial, took his text and preached from it, far from it. He disappeared suddenly into an open grave when he slipped on a fake grass mat that had been placed over an adjacent memorial slab for appearance's sake.

His Houdini-like departure, fortunately, produced an immediate search. In short order he was hoisted out of his untimely grave, dripping from mud, and he sued the undertaker for his injuries.

"He was careless in not providing a safe site for the burial," complained the irate minister in court. "It was my job to lead the deceased to heaven and not to follow him there."

"I can't be held responsible for what happened," answered the undertaken. "Everything was wet and slippery due to God's rain. As a minister, the Rev. Goodman should have been in better touch with God's work, not blaming me for it."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the undertaker responsible for the Reverend's sudden disappearance and injuries?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! He held that an undertaker, or the person charged with the responsibility, if it is someone else, must take proper steps to see to it that a grave site is reasonably safe, or, at least, he must warn those attending the funeral of any hazards that exist.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, May 22, the 142nd day of 1969. There are 223 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1946 the socalled "Truman Doctrine"—to stem the spread of communism—went into effect as the U.S. Congress appropriated $400 million for military and economic aid to Greece and Turkey.

On this date:

In 1807, Aaron Burr was put on trial in Richmond, Va., for treason.

In 1819, for the first time, an American-made steamship, the Savannah, set out for a transatlantic voyage.

In 1918, German planes riddled Paris during World War I.

In 1943, the Soviet Union announced the dissolution of the Communits International. The Comintern had been formed 24 years earlier to promote world revolution.

In 1944, during World War II, U.S. heavy bombers raided Kiel, Germany.

Ten years ago: A proposal to establish a United Nations garrison in West Berlin was being opposed by U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold.

Five years ago: U.S. jet planes were flying reconnaissance missions over northern Laos to check on the activity of pro-Communist forces. The Laotian government had requested the flights.

One year ago: The Charles de Gaulle regime in France was upheld as a censure moved in the National Assembly failed by 11 votes.

FDA Weighing Evidence of Birth Control Pill Side Effects

WASHINGTON (AP) — An advisory committee of the Food and Drug Administration is meeting behind closed doors this week to shift anew mounting evidence birth control pills can harm and even kill.

It already has issued two widely publicized reports on oral contraception and the current meeting is aimed toward a third that likely will be tougher than anything it has said so far.

"I think there is a growing awareness of the multiple effects on women," said one committee member who asked not to be quoted by name."

"if I was in private practice," he said, "I would prescribe the pill for certain women. But the key words are certain women."

Although the member declined to say how many on the committee share his views - if any - he said, "There is no conflict."

The new report is not expected until sometime this fall at the earliest, but the committee's meetings here today and Friday come on the heels of two signficiant events.

The National Institute of Health earlier this month said clinical trials showed that a common birth control pill component caused breast cancer in dogs and should be considered a risk for women.

Bearing the NIH stamp, the report by Dr. Roy Hertz was the most authoritative link between breast cancer and the pill to date. Hertz warned however, his data was preliminary and required much more study.

While this added new weight to rising criticism of the pill, another development followed on May 14 -announcement that an effective and perhaps safer minipill had been developed.

Dr. Somers A. Sturgis of the Harvard medical school told an international symposium that a lower strength hormone pill had been found effective in tests on some 4,700 women. He said the new pill was more effective than an intrauterine device -IUD - which got high marks from the FDA Advisory Committee in its second major report in January 1968.

Birth control pills was first provided for general use in 1961 and gained new users steadily until 1964 when 1.7 million women began using it.

The total of new users has fallen off steadily since to about half a million last year when a total of 7 million were estimated to have taken it at one time or another.
